POLITICAL.

Something About the Tammany Alliance.

A Prominent California Democrat for Grant.

Wisconsin Reformers Who Are Not for Greeley.

The Business Faculty of the Tammany Candidate.

Why the Mormons Desire the Success of the Democracy.

The Tammany Alliance.

As a general rule, the New-York Herald tries to make out that the Republicans are entering into alliances with the Tweed gang. The task is a difficult one, considering that all the facts tell against the theory. Sometimes, under pressure of the truth, the Herald lets out the secret. It did so in an article yesterday, from which we extract the following:

"There are now three Democratic organizations, each exercising a certain political influence independent of and at variance with the other. This, in itself, would not be of so much political significance, for the party has been similarly divided more than once before; but, as Democrats, they never drifted into foreign entanglements or lost their political identity in giving away their votes to Republicans at an election in return for Republican votes to sustain the candidates of one wing of the party. In the same way the Republican Party is divided—one set, the Liberal Republicans, combining with the Tammany Democrats to elect a Democratic State ticket, in return for Democratic votes for a Liberal Republican for the Presidency. It is an unprecedented state of affairs political, and will, no doubt, lead to a fierce conflict between the party leaders before the issue is decided."

San Francisco Germans for Grant.

The Germans of San Francisco who favor the election of Grant and Wilson held a large and most successful meeting on the evening of Aug. 16. The Alta says that it was indeed one of the most enthusiastic meetings of the campaign. Dr. J. Rosensperger presided, and able speeches were made by the President, Mr. D. Klinworth, editor of the Abend Post, Mr. S. Rosenbaum, Mr. H. Lowenberg, and Col. E. A. Denick. A German Grant and Wilson club was formed, and the meeting adjourned with cheers for the organization and for the national nominees.

Is Another Office Promised?

The Manchester (N. H.) Mirror of Friday says: "Mr. Greeley could not fail to see that the reception he met in our State was a heartless one. He came to New-Hampshire with the expectation that the entire Democratic Party and half the Republicans of the State would receive him with open arms. He fancied that New-Hampshire, his native State, would give him such an ovation as would send a 'tidal wave' across the continent, and bear him into the Executive chair without an effort of his. He was accustomed, when he first came within our borders, to speak of the election as already virtually determined; and we are told that he went so far as to give assurance to his Bradford friend that he should have a place in the Cabinet, as compensation for support."

Ex-Congressman Axtell for Grant.

Hon. Samuel B. Axtell, formerly a Democratic Member of Congress from California, has recently been visiting Morristown, N. J., and in the course of a conversation with a personal friend, said that he had determined, after mature deliberation, to give his influence and vote to Gen. Grant in the present contest. He could not but regard the election of Greeley as a calamity to the country, and he did not feel satisfied, as a citizen having a deep interest in its prosperity, to simply occupy a negative position and refuse to vote. He had opportunities to know something of Gen. Grant, and he believed him to be a thoroughly honest, upright and sincere man—infinitely preferable every way to Greeley. Mr. Axtell is a man of large influence and great personal popularity in the adopted State, having been twice elected to Congress from the San Francisco district, each time by majorities of about 5,000—a district which, both before his candidacy and since, has been carried by the Republicans.

Wisconsin Reformers who are not for Greeley.

Hon. Conrad Moser, Jr., of Buffalo County, Wisconsin, a legislator of considerable experience, and, as has been claimed by Greeley papers, "the leader of the German stampede in his county," has written a letter in which he renounces the fellowship of the sham Reformers, and says: "Although I have been a warm sympathizer of the reform movement, especially of the one-term principle, yet on looking over the whole ground, and after mature deliberation upon the principles, the men, and the circumstances surrounding them, and which are involved in the present political struggle, I have determined to adhere to the Republican Party and its nominees." Hon. Orlando Brown, State Senator from the same district, has also falsely been claimed as an adherent of Greeley. He is advocating the re-election of President Grant. Hon. Solon H. Clough, Judge of the North-western Circuit, who was likewise claimed, and whose name was even placed upon the Greeley State Central Committee, has written a letter, declaring his firm adhesion to the Republican Party, and to Grant and Wilson, its popular and worthy nominees.

Mr. Greeley's Business Faculty.

The statement of Mr. Philip May, a German, to the editor of the Knoxville Chronicle, explaining how he was deceived into investing, by the advice of Horace Greeley, in a colony scheme in North Carolina, and how disastrously that scheme affected himself and his fellowdupes, has been published in the TIMES. The story has elicited from the Chicago Times this comment: "One of Mr. Greeley's victims has risen up in evidence against him. It has been pretty well understood for some time that whenever a swindling adventurer wanted to organize a colony for the purpose of selling a useless tract of land that he had a more or less uncertain title to, or that was necessary was to tickle Mr. Greeley's vanity; represent that it was a splendid opportunity for working men, and, forthwith, he orally and through the columns of the New-York Tribune, would indorse it in all respects, and commend it to the favor of the public without reserve. Hence the grievances which Mr. Philip May recently recited to the editor of the Knoxville Chronicle. Now it is not supposed that Mr. Greeley profited in the remotest degree by this fraudulent scheme; but how monstrous to elect as President of the United States a man who could be so easily duped as to lend himself to such an imposition!"

The Oregon Democrats Reject Greeley.

The Oregon Democrats do not seem to be very hilarious just now, or at all pleased with the strange dishes set before them. The Portland Oregonian gives some illustrative incidents. One prominent Democrat in that city, it says, claims that he has always thought more of principles than men, and inasmuch as the Democratic Party has thrown overboard all its principles he shall select men to suit himself. Therefore he expects to vote for Grant. It also says that "there is a lonesome Greeley Republican in Douglas County—the party of the name of Matlock—who is anxiously waiting for his great leader, Jasper Johnson, to come home and organize him for the campaign." In another article the Oregonian says: "In the eastern counties of Oregon, Democracy don't take kindly to Greeley. In fact in many parts of that Democratic stronghold the Democrat who talks of voting for him is tabooed by his neighbors and treated as a pariah. A letter from Grant County informs us that the writer was present a few days ago at a gathering where there were twenty-six Democrats. The whole twenty-six declared they would not vote for Greeley, and the man who seemed to be the leader of the crowd wanted to bet $100 (taking the money out of his pocket) that Greeley will not get a vote in the precinct. Some one present suggested the name of one Democrat living in the precinct that would vote for Greeley. 'If he does,' the crowd exclaimed, 'we'll eat him!' A similar sentiment exists in all the eastern counties. Those counties usually give five to eight hundred Democratic majority. Good judges are of opinion that they will now give a majority for Grant."

The Mormons' Support of Greeley.

The Salt Lake (Utah) Tribune thus explains why the Mormons oppose Grant and support Greeley: "In Utah, we are aware, the feelings of the Mormon people are on the side of Democracy, State sovereignty and the Woodchopper, but this arises more from the fact that Grant is the pronounced enemy of polygamy than from any special love for Greeley, as he has been denounced by the Churchists here as the 'Father of Lies.' The Mormon Church population of Utah want Greeley and a Democratic Congress, as the chances for a perpetuation of priestly rule and the absolutism of State sovereignty depend on his election in November. On the one hand, with Grant as President, they know just what opposition to expect. On the other, their chances of hoodwinking and betraying the Government are infinitely better. Hence the Latter-day Saints hurrah for white hats."

Secretary Robeson in Portland.

Secretary Robeson addressed a large Republican meeting in Portland, Me., on Thursday evening last. We quote the concluding paragraphs of a brief report of his remarks furnished by the Portland Press: "The Southern Democracy's triumph," he said, "means the downfall of the Government, and for a man like Greeley to fall down into abject submission in order to satisfy his ambition, is a sad, sorrowful fact. Whom can you trust? The Republican Party. Its principles are just, its leaders are men who are inspired with lofty purpose. They are not men whose light tends to dazzle but to delude, and flickers but to expire. Gen. Grant's name was here greeted with tremendous cheers and applause. His glorious war record at Vicksburg, Shiloh, Wilderness, and the final strangling of the rebellion was graphically referred to amid bursts of applause. Gen. Grant believes in action rather than profession. His life is given to devotion to principle, as the answer to criticism. Gross insults speak of great powers. When a man has been for ten years the pivot around which events centre, that man must possess some of the attributes of greatness. The characteristics of his mind, the principles of his character, the method and order of his Administration, these and other qualities show the soldier, statesman and leader. Future history will only do him justice. No nobler hero will ever be enshrined on the pinnacle of fame than the American soldier. The present movement is an endeavor to seek betrayal of our chosen leaders within the ranks of the country's noblest defenders. But the fact remains that a loyal people, educated by the severe conflicts in defence of the great principles of liberty and justice, will never prove false to their lofty principles, as the record of the past ten years most gloriously declare. Be true, my friends, in the future as in the past to the principles for which that man lived and died, and count his enemies your enemies, and ere another moon shall wane let us hear at the capital the joyful cry which shall be the shout of battle and the cheer of victory."

Grant and Wilson in Wisconsin.

There has not been much talk in the East about Wisconsin, mainly because Wisconsin is expected to give a big Republican majority, as has been its good fashion annually during the past sixteen years. But Wisconsin Bepublicans are by no means idle, notwithstanding their excellent prospects. They are hard at work, intending to bring their majority above the average, and therein they are setting a good example to their brethren in all the States. Some particulars of the canvass are given by the Madison State Journal, which says: "There is a genuine enthusiasm for Grant and Wilson in this State. The supporters of the Philadelphia nominees are not so noisy on the cars and in public places during business hours, as half their number of Chappaquaskers would be, but when meetings are called, they are on hand and red hot. The treachery of Greeley, and the evils his election would entail, have aroused the people. The business men understand their interests. They want stability and security in financial matters. Loyal men, desiring peace and security for all under the Constitution, favor Grant and Wilson. A gentleman who was at the Whitewater meeting addressed by Judge Howe, Saturday, says that at no time there, during the war or since the war, has there been anything that equaled the wild scenes of enthusiasm manifested at the Wigwam dedicated Aug. 17. We have the same gratifying accounts from other parts of the State where meetings have been held and the real issue presented."

Chautauqua County.

Francis B. Brewer and John D. Hiller have been nominated for the Assembly by the Republicans of Chautauqua County. The Fredonia Censor says: "We hope future nominations will be as fairly and honorably made, and the nominees be of as unexceptionable character." Both districts of Chautauqua and the western district of Cattaraugus have adopted the plan of direct representation in Congressional and Senatorial nominations as recommended by the meeting of committees recently held in Dunkirk. It was then agreed that if three of the districts should adopt it, the call of the convention should be made on the plan recommended. The Censor also gives a report that the straight Democrats of Chautauqua will have a meeting at Dunkirk next Tuesday to send delegates to the Louisville Convention, for the nomination of Democratic candidates for President and Vice-President. It is also informed that a straight Democratic organization is formed at Westfield with some fifty members, and that similar organizations are forming in other places.

Gen. James F. Wilson on Grant.

In his eloquent speech at Fairfield, Iowa, Gen. James F. Wilson said: "I have entered on no defense of President Grant. He does not need it. I do not claim that he has made no mistakes; but I do assert that such as he may have made do not seriously affect the public interests. He has done as well in his high office as any man would have done. He is a patient, able, plodding man, who neglects no trust and betrays no confidence. Let those who can point to deeds of their own as great as his criticise him. Let drones and failures be silent. What a man has done constitutes the true standard by which to try him. Take Grant's history for the last twelve years, and you may safely challenge the world to match it. The storm of malignant mendacity which has burst upon him, will spend its fury in vain. The people of this country, gratefully remembering his great services, will see to his safe deliverance. The American people are not ungrateful. November will prove this by the re-election of Grant."

Cuyahoga County, Ohio.

Northern Ohio is strong for Grant. Of Cuyahoga County, where the Greeleyites hoped to receive some consolation and encouragement, the Cleveland Herald thus speaks: "It will not give its old majorities, but something much larger. And right here we would say to our friends elsewhere who have been astounded at statements made by Cleveland apostates, when away from home, of a great 'Greeley uprising' in the neighborhood of Cleveland, and Cuyahoga County giving tremendous majorities for Greeley, and of Ohio going for the chief Chappaquack—that the boasters keep very shady about such bragging when at home. It will not take many white hats to cover the heads of Ex-Republican Greeleyites in the neighborhood, outside the Germans. There is not, we have good reason for believing, a German in Cleveland who was not disgusted with Greeley's nomination, or who supports him with real heartiness now, while the number who are falling away from even nominal adherence is daily increasing. For every American Republican who has gone over to Greeley, there are at least five American Democrats come over to Grant, while the whole number of Germans who even now profess adherence to Greeley falls very short of the Irish Democrats who refuse to eat crow."

The Democratic Party.

The Mobile Register, the Montgomery Advertiser, and the Wilcox Vindicator, are among the most strenuous of the Alabama papers in contending that the Democratic Party is not dead. The last-named journal says that "three millions of Democratic throats in one grand chorus, brand the declaration as false, for the organization of the National Democracy today is just as perfect and complete as when it voted for Polk in 1844, for Pierce in 1852, and Buchanan in 1856." We quote further: "Can a party be called dead which intends casting three-fourths of the votes which are to make Horace Greeley the next President of the United States? Can a party be dead which will have a majority in the next United States Congress of its followers and adherents, who will shape the future policy of this Government. You might as well ascertate as a Biblical truth that Jonah swallowed the whale, as to assert that this Liberal movement which is now going on has swallowed up the National Democracy."

Ex-Mayor Havemeyer to Gen. Dix.

NEW-YORK, Aug. 23, 1872.

MY DEAR SIR: Although I know that your nomination by the Republican Party, as its candidate for Governor of the State, is anything but agreeable to you, yet I hope the flattering manner in which it was made will induce you to accept the proffered honor.

The effect of this act upon the people, outside of the Tammany Ring and Greeley junk-shop, is one of general satisfaction. At all events I can speak for myself, that my mind has been relieved of a load of anxiety which has been oppressing me for the last month, lest the Republican politicians should foist upon us a candidate who would ruin the cause of good government and honest reform, and this relief seems to be thankfully shared by that portion of the public with which I am in daily contact. I think it, therefore, of the highest importance that your name should be permitted to stand where it is, and although it may cause you sacrifices which you should not be called upon to make, it, at the same time, will crown your career with a glory which many will envy, but which is pre-eminently due to your life-long devotion to the best interests of our City, State and Nation. Yours truly, in haste,

W. F. HAVEMEYER.

To Gen. John A. DIX, West Hampton, Long Island.

Our Colored Citizens' Grant and Wilson Rally.

The grand rally of colored voters at the Republican head-quarters, corner of Broadway and Twenty-third-street, to-night, to ratify the Philadelphia nominations, will be an interesting event. It is an enterprise of the colored citizens of the Twentieth Ward, but a majority of our colored Republicans will be looked for. As Rev. H. H. Garnett, Hon. D. H. White, Rev. W. F. Butler, George Francis, Dr. Newton, Samuel Clay and Augustus T. Bishop are advertised to address the meeting. A large audience of white people will undoubtedly attend. A number of Ward and District colored Republican associations have been invited, and the Fifteenth Assembly District Association propose marching to the place of gathering in procession with flags and transparencies.

Signers to the Veterans' Call.

About 300 more names, signed to a roll approving the call for a Soldiers' and Sailors' Convention at Pittsburg, September 17, were received from California, by the Veterans' National Committee, Fifth-avenue Hotel, on Saturday. The names were sent from San Francisco. Another large list of names, it was stated in the letter sent to the Committee, is yet to be received from the interior of the State. An additional list of names to the roll was also received from Indiana.

A Minnesota Democrat, Late Candidate for Governor, Repudiates Greeley and Declares for Grant.

Hon. E. O. Hamlin, a native of Wayne County, Pennsylvania, has written the letter which we reproduce below. Judge Wayne has been a Democrat ever since he reached voting age, and was late the Democratic candidate for Governor of Minnesota, the State in which he has long resided. His letter is as follows:

ST. CLOUD, Minn., July 24, 1872.

Hon. R. N. McLaren, Secretary Republican State Central Committee, St. Paul, Minn.:

DEAR SIR: I received, last evening, your favor of the 23d inst., saying you have been informed that I intend to vote for Gen. U. S. Grant, the Republican candidate for President, and extending to me an invitation to canvass the State in behalf of the Republican ticket. Your information is entirely correct. All my life I have been a Democrat—not from interest, as is well known, but from an honest conviction that the principles of that party were such as would most promote the welfare of our country. The use of my name by other political bodies has been without my knowledge and in spite of my wishes. For years I have clung to the belief that, notwithstanding the blunders of the past, an honest and faithful adherence to its principles by the Democratic Party would be recognized, and those principles adopted by the American people in the future as they have in the past. Feeling this, I regard the action of the Democratic Convention at Baltimore as the deliberate sacrifice of every principle which has made the party honorable and useful, for the hope of a share in present spoils.

It appears to me that this Convention outraged the first principles of Democracy in refusing to allow free speech, and disorganized and dissolved the Democratic Party by the adoption of a platform made to order, for use, by dissatisfied Republicans, and nominating as its candidate a man whose most consistent political principle has been hostility to Democratic measures and enmity toward the Democratic Party. As a life-long Democrat, I acknowledge the power of the National Democratic Convention to bind the party by the nomination of its standard-bearer true to its faith, and to adopt a platform consistent with its fundamental principles, but for one, I do not recognize the right of any Democratic convention to select a Republican candidate, upon a Republican platform, and make their acceptance the test of Democracy.

I find myself, then, in the position, so far as my humble influence goes, of being obliged to indorse and sustain what in my judgment is shameless barter of time-honored principles for the hope of power, or to endeavor to secure defeat of this movement, in the only manner left to me by which I can use my vote and influence against it. I regard the lesson which will be taught by its defeat as of far more consequence than the displacement of one Republican—of at least a grand military history, and whose Administration has certainly been a financial success—for the mere substitution of another, whose political views upon questions involving the very life of the nation in the past give but little promise for the future of consistent and stable action in the Presidential chair.

As between these two parties I much prefer the government of a party of principle to the tyranny of a rapacious and disordant organization whose only claim to support is loud-mouthed protestations of honesty, and whose only cohesive power must be the hope of public plunder, and I am frank to admit that if the Shibboleth of Democracy consist in placing in the Presidential chair a man who has always been "a decided enemy of that party even in its most respectable aspects," I have understood the principles and loved it and honored it in vain.

I am aware that older and more experienced men than myself regard the nomination of Mr. Greeley by the Democratic Party as expedient and wise, but we must each, if we would preserve our self-respect, regulate our own actions in political ethics by the dictates of our own judgment; and I shall at least have the satisfaction of knowing that I acted on earnest convictions of duty, and if this move proves the destruction of the Democratic Party that my voice and my vote were against it. But while these are my earnest sentiments as to which I have no concealment, my private business and professional engagements are such as to prevent my entering the political canvass. Regretting that my engagements have compelled me to state my views so hurriedly, and thanking you for the compliment of your invitation, I am respectfully your obedient servant,

EDWARD O. HAMLIN.

General Notes.

The Republican District Convention of the First Alabama District met at Camden, on the 19th inst., and nominated Mr. Philip Joseph, of Mobile, for Congressman, and M. G. Candee, of Wilcox County, as Presidential Elector.

On Friday evening last a Democratic Grant and Wilson Campaign Club was organized in Yorkville, at Saenger Hall, No. 1,544 Third-avenue. One hundred and thirty-eight names were enrolled, all Democrats, and Mr. M. J. Bannon was elected President, and J. Daly Secretary.

On Thursday evening a Grant and Wilson Club was organized at Coxsackie, N. Y., with a membership of over 350. The meeting was very enthusiastic, many veteran soldiers being present to show their willingness to support their old leader. J. L. B. Silvester was elected President of the Club, and Wm. Farmer, J. V. O'Connor and W. W. Clow as Vice-Presidents.

The first election district of Haverstraw, N. Y., organized the "Garnerville Tanners" on Wednesday evening last with 110 members, and Henry M. Peck, an old Democrat, as President. The district gave Grant 131 votes in 1868. This year only the southern portion of the district has been canvassed. Many Democrats are already members of the Club.

MAINE.

What the Republicans Have Been and Are Doing.

A Brilliant Array of Orators—Meetings to be Held During the Present Week—The Speakers for the Unholy Alliance.

Special Dispatch to the New-York Times.

AUGUSTA, Me., Aug. 25.—The campaign in Maine has assumed, on the Republican side, an attractive and deeply interesting aspect. The past week has witnessed great vigor of management and success in execution of detail, but the present week and the next are to eclipse by far anything that has yet occurred in this campaign, or perhaps in any other for many years.

WHAT HAS BEEN DONE.

A brief review will show the amount of splendid work which is being done on the Republican side, under the energetic management of the State Committee, of which that untiring worker and thorough organizer, Hon. Jas. G. Blaine, is Chairman. Numerous magnificent meetings have been held during the past week, especially in the Third, Fourth and Fifth Congressional Districts. Judge Bingham, who has been two weeks in the State, and who will see the campaign through to the end, began the week with a fine meeting at Brunswick, and then spoke successively, and with excellent results, at Winthrop, Waterville, St. Albans and Foxcroft, ending the week at Oldtown, on Saturday. The meeting at Foxcroft was a very fine affair. A special train went up from Bangor with the Bangor Cornet Band and Grant and Wilson Club, 500 strong, and the streets of these two towns were brilliantly illuminated in the evening by the parade of 1,000 Republicans with torches. Hon. Glenni W. Scofield, who has been in the State for two weeks past, has spent the greater portion of the past week in Hon. Eugene Hale's district, speaking to very large audiences at Ellsworth on Wednesday, and at Calais on Friday. Frederick Douglass, who is delighting thousands by his incomparable logic, oratory, and wit, began the week at Newport, Penobscot County, on Tuesday, spoke at Bangor on Wednesday, at Houlton, Aroostook County, on Thursday, Orrington Friday, and at Bucksport, Hancock County, in Hale's district, on Saturday. The spirit of the campaign is well illustrated by the Houlton meeting. Senator Hamlin and Fred. Douglass were sent up from Bangor in an extra train which was filled with volunteers and accompanied by the Bangor Cornet Band. They went to the north-east corner of Maine, and a distance of nearly 150 miles, held an immense meeting, and returned the next morning at daynght. Gen. Harriman spoke in Gardiner early in the week, then in Dexter, Penobscot County, and spent the remainder of the week in Piscataquis County. Secretary Robeson entered the State at Kitterey, where he spoke on Tuesday; on Wednesday, at Saco; on Thursday, at Portland; on Friday, at Rockland; and on Saturday, at Belfast. At the last two places he was accompanied by Senator Morrill, and the effect in that part of Mr. Hale's district, which is one of those considered doubtful, has been excellent. Mr. Robeson went out of the State on Saturday night to attend the New-Jersey Convention next Thurday, and after a brief visit to Washington will return to the State to participate in the canvass during the last week. Gen. W. H. Frye has been waking up his own district in a spirited manner during the week, and has been largely aided by Gen. Jno. L. Swift, who spent the week in Franklin County.

WORK OF THE PRESENT WEEK.

The ensuing week will doubtless witness the largest demonstrations of the campaign, and they will certainly equal if they do not surpass any that have ever been held in the State. The first will be a great Soldiers' Convention at Portland, on Tuesday, to prepare for the Pittsburg Convention, at which Gen. Butler, Senator Wilson, Gen. John M. Harlan, Gen. Burnside, and Fed. Douglass will speak. The second grand demonstration will be held at Augusta on Friday, with Butler, Wilson, Hamlin and Douglass for the attractions. The week opens to-morrow with a speech from Gen. Harlan, at Biddeford, another from Fred. Douglass at Gorham, with Speaker Blaine and John Y. Foster, Esq., of Newark, at Winthrop. Gen. John L. Swift will canvass the entire week in Sadagahoc County, Fry's district. Judge Bingham has been exclusively assigned to the Fourth District, and Gen. Harriman to the Fifth. On Tuesday, in addition to the great meeting at Portland, Blaine and Wilson will speak at Hallowell, and on Wednesday, Butler and Burnside will speak at Bath, Douglass at Brunswick, and Harlan and Wilson at Ellsworth. On Thursday Wilson will speak in Bangor, and Butler and Douglass in Skowhegan. On Friday Douglass and Hon. Israel Washburn will speak at Wiscasset, and there will be, in addition the great meeting in Augusta. On Saturday, Douglass and Butler will speak at Farmington, Franklin County, and Wilson and Harlan at Norway, Oxford County.

For the last week of the campaign preparations are on a scale commensurate with the necessities of the occasion. At least 200 meetings will be held, and in addition to the army of able speakers already in the State, the list will be reinforced by some of the strongest men in the country, so that it will include Senator Wilson, Gen. Butler, Gen. Harlan, Hon. J. W. Scofield, Secretary Robeson, Fred. Douglass, Hon. H. L. Dawes, Judge Bingham, John W. Foster, Gen. Burnside, Alex. Warwick, Esq., Gen. Hawley, Judge Russell, of Massachusetts, Hon. J. H. Ela, Hon. D. W. Gooch, Gen. Harriman and Gen. John L. Swift, with the local State talent, like Speaker Blaine, Senators Morrill and Hamlin, Congressmen Frye and Hale, Hon. N. F. Morrill, Hon. L. Barker, Gen. Caldwell, Gen. Hall and many others. So the Republicans of the country can safely conclude from this review that everything that can be done is being done to keep Maine in her proper place in the Republican column.

THE STATE CANVASS.

In addition to all this work of speaking, the canvass of the voters of the State is going on quite vigorously, and an enormous amount of detail is being thoroughly executed.

THE DEMOCRACY'S MOVEMENTS.

The Greeleyites have taken alarm at the activity of the Republican canvass, and they are making desperate efforts to retrieve the set-back which they have received. For this purpose they brought Trumbull and Farnsworth into the State last week, and will trot out Gen. Banks during the present week. Trumbull spoke on Friday at Biddeford, on Saturday at Lewiston, and will speak this week—Monday at Portland, Tuesday at Augusta, and Wednesday at Bangor, Farnsworth spoke on Friday night at Gardiner, and at Waterville last night. His meeting at Gardiner was an ignominious failure. His speech was such a mess of nonsensical drivel that his audience deserted him in disgust and when he closed there were scarcely fifty persons left in a hall that will hold 1,200. He has flattened out completely on the very start. Banks is down for four speeches during the latter part of the week—at Saccarappa, Buckfield, Farmington and Skowhegan. The rest of the Greeleyite talent in this State is embodied in Chauncey M. Depew, Leonard Swett, James S. Thayer, Major Haggerty and Victoria-Woodhull-Demosthenes Tilton. It is a significant fact that the Democrats have brought none of their foreign speakers into the State, but are leaving the labor to the apostate Republicans. This is because they fear the presence of their old campaigners will disgust the Greeleyites—but they shouldn't stop on that account. The result is likely to be that they will lose as much one way as they will gain the other.

CYMON.

LOUISIANA.

A Grand Celebration by Natives of Alsace and Lorraine.

NEW-ORLEANS, La., Aug. 25.—There was a grand celebration in this city, today, in honor of the declaration of allegiance to France by from 1,000 to 2,000 natives of Elsass and Lorraine. There was a procession composed of a number of French societies, and the celebration terminated at the Opera-house with addresses by Solomon J. Passaima, Dominich, and the French Consul, M. Touconet. Five thousand people participated in the celebration.

THE COALITIONISTS.

Trouble in Louisiana—Warmoth Must be Thrown Out Before the Democrats will Consent to Fuse.

Special Dispatch to the New-York Times.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Aug. 25.—Private advices from New-York say that the hasty meeting of the Democratic National Committee in that City, last week, was called to consider the condition of the Greeley cause in Louisiana. There are already three State tickets in the field—the Republican, the Liberal and the Democratic—and the State Central Committee of the latter party passed resolutions recently, instructing their Chairman, Mr. B. Brady, to visit New-York City and inform Aug. Schell that the Democrats of Louisiana will never consent to a fusion with the Liberals until Gov. Warmoth, member of the National Committee of this State, is removed from the position.

If Warmoth can be forced out of the Greeley party the Democrats will advocate a consolidation of the two electoral tickets, and the formation of a joint ticket for State officers. The results of Brady's mission has not yet transpired.

NORTHERN NEW-YORK.

Republicans in Earnest—Inauguration of a Formidable Movement Among the Straight-Outs.

Special Dispatch to the New-York Times.

OSWEGO, N. Y., Aug. 25.—The Republicans of Scriba Corners, in this County, yesterday afternoon raised five Grant and Wilson poles. Subsequently a large and enthusiastic gathering of farmers from adjacent neighborhoods was addressed by Hon. D. G. Fort and District-Attorney Nutting, of this city. The Utica nominations are heartily indorsed and believed to be the very best that could have been made. The excellent spirit which pervaded the deliberations of the Convention, bids fair to prevail universally among Republicans. The different local organizations will settle to their work with new zeal. Trustworthy information has reached us of several persons hitherto identified with the Piebalds, becoming dissatisfied with recent developments, and returning to their old allegiance. A formidable straight-out feeling is gaining headway in this county, and the northern part of the State. Circulars addressed to loyal Democrats have been issued and widely distributed, earnestly requesting their co-operation in the Louisville movement, and the unqualified repudiation of old white hat and all its sham appurtenances.

THE WEST VIRGINIA ELECTION.

Jacob, the Independent Candidate, Successful—The Fate of the New Constitution in Doubt.

WHEELING, West Va., Aug. 25.—Reports to the Intelligencer from thirty-three counties give Jacob, independent Democrat for Governor, within a few votes of 6,000 majority. This is more likely to be increased than diminished by the twenty-one counties yet to be heard from. The Democrats concede Jacob's election, by 5,000 or 6,000 majority. The Democratic majority for Governor in 1870 was 2,150, and in 1871, on the call for the Convention, 2,850, so that the change by comparison with 1871, when the enfranchised Confederates voted for the first time, will be from 8,000 to 9,000 against the regular Democracy.

The fate of the Constitution is in doubt. The large majority against it in this part of the State is neutralized by the counties east of the mountains, which voted heavily for Jacob and ratification. In thirty-three counties heard from there is a majority against the Constitution of about 1,000. This will more likely be reduced than increased by the territory yet to be heard from.

This Judicial Circuit re-elects Melven Judge by probably 500 majority. The county gives Jacob 280 majority, a change of 747 from the vote of Governor two years ago. It gives 370 majority for ratification and elects a Republican Sheriff and Clerk of the Circuit Court. The regular Democrats elect the rest of the local ticket. Davis, Independent Democrat, is ahead for Congress in this district, as far as reported, and his election by about 500 majority is conceded.

Partial Returns from Seventeen Counties—Probable Re-Election of Gov. Jacob and Defeat of the New State Constitution.

From the Wheeling Intelligencer, Aug. 24.

We have news this morning from some seventeen counties of the State; and it is an almost unbroken array of majorities for Gov. Jacob and for the rejection of the Constitution. It shows a very striking and significant gain in favor of the reform movement headed by Gov. Jacob as compared with the vote cast for the Democratic candidate for Governor two years ago.

These reports are in some cases fragmentary, and in none, it is presumed, can their entire accuracy be claimed; but assuming them to be as correct as the average of such reports usually are, they show a powerful revolt against the domination of the Ring, of which Mr. Camden is the recognized head and the new Constitution the first fruit, and indicate very strongly the election of Gov. Jacob and the possible rejection of the Constitution. The rising tide is not confined to this upper section of the State. From the Eastern Pan Handle, from the mountains of the interior, from the Kanawha Valley and from the extreme south-western border, comes the same report of big majorities against Camden and his Constitution.

A few comparisons in cases where we have reports as to whole counties show surprising results. Taking the last vote for Governor, when the Democrats elected their Governor by a majority of 3,250, we find these important changes indicated by our reports this morning in favor of Gov. Jacob's re-election:

Hancock, a change of	77
Brooke	133
Ohio	667
Marshall	402
Taylor	289
Berkeley	61
Wood	60
Mineral	505
Kanawha	768
Marion, from last year	140
Putnam	138
Mason	581
Wayne	476
Harrison, (as far as reported)	271
Total	4,565

Here are fourteen counties in which there is a change of nearly 5,000 votes—more than double the Democratic majority with which we are comparing. In the case of Ohio, this is estimating Gov. Jacob's majority at 200—and it is pretty closely figured at 222. In the case of Wood County the change is 100 greater in the vote on the Constitution. In Marion the comparison is made with the vote of last year.

Since putting the foregoing into type we have our second Greenbrier dispatch, according to which there is an adverse change in Greenbrier against the vote of 1870 of 459, and of 51 in our favor in Monroe.

THE WEATHER.

Conditions and Probabilities.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 26—1 A. M.—The barometer has risen somewhat over the Southern States, where it is highest, with generally clear weather, except over Florida. Areas of cloud and light rain have prevailed over the lake region, with light to fresh winds, partly cloudy weather and light to fresh south-easterly to south-westerly winds from New-England to Virginia.

PROBABILITIES.

Clear weather generally over the Southern States east of the Mississippi, except possibly along the South Atlantic coast; winds veering to westerly, with clear and clearing weather for the Middle States; areas of cloud and rain for New-England, followed by clearing weather and winds veering to westerly during the evening. South-easterly to south-westerly winds north-west of the Ohio Valley. The majority of the midnight telegraphic reports have not yet been received.

Secretary Delano's Recovery—The French Postal Convention—Southern Claims Commission.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 26.—Secretary Delano has so far recovered from his recent sickness as to be able to transact official business.

PROBABILITY OF A POSTAL CONVENTION WITH FRANCE.

Negotiations are in progress, through Minister Washburne, for a postal convention with France. The last accounts seem favorable for a good arrangement. There is now no plan between the French and United States Governments for an exchange of mails. Letters for France should be addressed "via England," and the ten cents postage prepaid.

THE SOUTHERN CLAIMS COMMISSION.

The aggregate number of claims presented to the Southern Claims Commission thus far is 16,000, ranging from $12 to $350,000, and averaging $2,500 each. The Commission have finally reported on 580 cases, in which $1,600,000 were claimed. About 250 of them were rejected, principally for absence of proofs of loyally, and for the remaining 330 cases Congress, on the recommendation of the Commission, appropriated $350,000, the money having since been paid, with the exception of $15,000, which was stopped through the reports of special agents, who were employed, after the general report of the Commissioners had been made to Congress, and who discovered reasons for withholding this amount in three or four cases from Virginia. The Commissioners, three in number, absent from Washington, have under examination 500 claims apiece, upon which they will report at their next meeting in October when, in addition, 500 other cases will also be decided. The Commission will, according to the law creating it, expire on the 3d of March next, and six years will be consumed in transacting the business now on hand. Under the Bureau system, such as prevails in the Departments, fifty years would be required for this purpose. The rapidity of transacting the business of the Commission is unprecedented; there being one chief clerk and only four assistants. This expedition is principally due to the fact that but few formalities are observed, and voluminous books dispensed with. The expenses to claimants are small. There are no office fees excepting for taking testimony, and the lowest charge is made for claims under $1,000. Information has been received that agents in the South are collecting claims of persons whose property was taken for public uses, or destroyed to facilitate military operations, but who cannot prove loyalty, owing to their giving aid and comfort to the confederates. These agents are acting upon the supposition that Congress will ultimately dispense with the loyalty clause. The aggregate of such claims is already large.

A Murderer's Suicide.

THE OLD NORTH STATE.

A Review of the Political Field in North Carolina.

How the Democrats Were Deceived—What the "Contest" Swindle Means—Brown to Restore the South to Power.

From a Special Correspondent.

ASHEVILLE, N. C., Tuesday, Aug. 20, 1872.

The smoke of the late political battle has cleared away, and we can now speak somewhat confidently of what has happened, and predict with safety what will come to pass in North Carolina on the first Tuesday in November next.

HOW THE DEMOCRATS WERE DECEIVED.

For three days succeeding the election on the 1st day of August past, the Democrats claimed that they had carried this State by from eight to fifteen thousand majority. There were two important reasons why they jumped at victory with such certainty. One was that they had expended so much money, and put "Wood at his work in the west;" the other, and the controlling one, no doubt, was that the first returns that came in the night of election were from Republican counties. In those counties the Democrats made some of their largest gains. They counted on holding their majorities in the western part of the State; that would give them at least ten thousand majority. But when the white counties of the west began to come in, the "awful thought" flashed through their minds that thousands of white people had voted the Republican ticket who never had voted it before. Two years ago Stokes County gave the Democrats 473 majority, this year it came in with only 50 Democratic majority. The county, too, was and is entirely in the hands of Democratic officials. Many other white counties in the west did equally as well. The Republicans made large gains in nearly all of them. The last Legislature was largely Democratic. They were extremely partisan and unscrupulous as the whole country knows. They redistricted the State for members of Congress in such a manner, as they believed, to only give one Republican member of Congress. Three Republicans were elected. They redistricted the State for members of the Legislature, so that in their opinion they would certainly have a three-fourths majority in each House. They made Senatorial districts which are one hundred miles long and in some places not more than six miles wide. Notwithstanding all this, they have but six majority in the House and fourteen majority in the Senate. They passed an election law which has never been equaled for gross injustice in this country. Heretofore, registration had been allowed for thirty days previous to and including election day. The law in force this year did not allow registration on election day. Hundreds of people did not know of the change, and demanded the right of registration on the day of election, but were refused. The law required that State officers, members of Congress, members of the Legislature and, county officers should be voted for in different boxes—four in number. It can be established that in Democratic counties, where Democrats controlled the boxes, colored people who could not read were told to put their tickets in any boxes they pleased and "go on." This they did, and at night, when the count was made, all ballots found in the wrong box were thrown out. I have talked with many Republicans who were at different voting places, and they all say that out of the many ballots that were rejected for being in the wrong box, they did not see one Democratic ticket. According to the Election law, the State authorities had no voice whatever in the election. The County Commissioners in each county had entire control. They appointed registrars and the judges of election. They changed voting precincts at their pleasure.

ABSURD CHARGES OF FRAUDS BY REPUBLICANS.

During the past two years sixty-six counties in this State have been in the hands of Democratic county officials—most of them perjured Kuklux—men who were elected by the Kuklux in 1870. In those sixty-six counties the same men controlled and managed the ballot-boxes this year. Yet, strange as it may appear, in the face of the loud cry of fraud, the Republicans gained about seven thousand on their vote in 1870, and the Democrats only gained thirty-five hundred. Who committed the fraud? Twenty-seven counties only were controlled by Republicans at the last election. While it was thought that the Democrats had carried the State their constant remarks to Republicans was: "I knew we would sweep the State if we ever got a free election; we had none of Grant's Yankee hirelings in blue near the polls this time." But when it was found out that Caldwell was elected, and the Republicans had won a glorious victory against a mint of money and scores of imported speakers, the cry was "fraud! corruption! fraud!!" At first the Republicans were completely dumbfounded at the idea of being accused by the Democrats of being smart enough to swindle them out of an election. They say that ever since the formation of the Republican Party in this State the Democrats have carried it as a religious belief, and preached it from the pulpit, the stump, and through the Press, that the Republicans were ignorant, incapable of doing anything, destitute of any social position—in fine, a lot of scallawags and niggers—and that they, the Democrats, had all the wealth, intelligence, refinement and virtue that could be found in the State. And now to wake up and find the whole Democratic Party, from one end of the State to the other, from Merrimon down, asserting positively that these poor, illiterate, ignorant Republicans have swindled them out of an election is perfectly startling. It does look strange, in view of the facts: Sixty-six counties out of ninety-three were controled by Democrats. Wood and Blumenberg were in the State with two thousand dollars each, and the State Democratic Committee received sixty thousand dollars from the Tammany Ring, via Liberal Head-quarters, New-York City. I am told that many Democrats through this country were sent an abundance of money, and—most of them have it yet.

WHAT THE "CONTEST" SWINDLE MEANS.

After the cry of fraud comes the alarm of contest. Certain newspapers in this State say that Merrimon owes it to the people to contest the election. The election law provides that the county authorities shall seal up the returns, direct them to the "Speaker of the House of Representatives," and send them to the Secretary of State, in whose custody they shall remain until the Legislature shall have convened and the House shall have elected a Speaker, when the Secretary of State shall deliver the returns to the Speaker, who shall open them and announce the result to the Legislature in joint assembly. At that time any candidate on the defeated ticket can give notice that he desires to contest, and the House will hear and decide the matter. The rules adopted in conducting contests between members control these proceedings. If such a law is constitutional, a Legislature would have no difficulty in defeating the will of the people as expressed through the ballot-box. The last Democratic Legislature had so little regard for their oaths that they unseated Republicans and seated Democrats, so that they could barry out their designs. The new body may be no better. Merrimon is called upon to contest. The demand was first made upon him by a paper that is regarded as Senator Ransom's organ and mouth-piece. It was then followed up by papers known to be in the interest of Gov. Vance. I have traveled through some of the counties west of the Blue Ridge, and from leading Democrats—friends of Merrimon—I have heard of a combination between the Ransom and Vance parties to make Vance United States Senator in November, and forever bury Merrimon, politically. I am now in the county where Merrimon was born and raised. The Democrats here are his true friends, although they dislike his course during the late war. He was a stay-at-home man. Vance and Ransom represent the war element. When Vance was elected to the United States Senate in 1870, he defeated Merrimon for the nomination. When Ransom was elected to the United States Senate in 1872, he defeated Merrimon for the nomination. Then it was Merrimon said that if he received any more such treatment he, would forever cut loss from the Democratic Party of North Carolina. He was promised the Governorship if he would keep quiet. He was nominated, made an able canvass, and was defeated. Now he is a candidate for the United States Senate. So is Gov. Vance. The Ransom and Vance parties are doing all they can to get Merrimon to contest, for the reason that during his contest a United States Senator will be elected, and he will be considered out. Then Vance would go to the Senate and Merrimon, losing in the contest, as all fair-minded Democrats admit he must, will be heard of nevermore in the politics of this State. The scheme is well laid, and may succeed. It is said that when Ransom and Vance canvassed this part of the State they did nothing for the State ticket, but bent all their energies on the Legislature.

FRAUDS IN DEMOCRATIC COUNTIES.

The talk about contesting the election is all moonshine, except in so far as it will aid the above conspiracy to kill Merrimon. An investigation will develop the grossest frauds in every Democratic county in the State. I have heard of many. Among those in the western counties I have the following: In the Counties of Cherokee and Jackson is the Cherokee tribe of Indians. They have never dissolved their tribal relations to the Government, and have no right to vote. In the recent election in both the above-named counties Indians who said they would vote the Democratic ticket were allowed to vote, but none others. All the Republican tickets for Cherokee and Macon Counties were sent to a Postmaster in Cherokee County for distribution. He destroyed them, and on election day there was not a Republican ticket in either of those counties. The loss to the Republicans was over 600 in consequence of this treachery. In Cleveland County many Democrats voted by proxy. They sent their ballots in envelopes. The judges of election swore the bearer of the envelope, the oath being that he had not opened it, &c. Then they would break the envelope, and place the ballots in the proper boxes. No Republicans were allowed this privilege. Notwithstanding all these frauds committed by the Democrats, Gov. Caldwell is elected by about 2,300 majority, and will take his seat next January. The cry of fraud and corruption is kept up by the Democrats to prevent the weak-kneed from deserting, and to keep life and enthusiasm in some of the local leaders. They ought to be called the Mark Tapley Association. They certainly deserve great credit for being jolly under such dampening circumstances. The Hillsboro Recorder, a strong Democratic Greeley paper, published at Hillsboro, N. C., has the following on Merrimon's contest:

"And they want to contest Caldwell's election. Well, it is all bosh, again. Caldwell is certainly elected, and that we have and certainly better make our minds up to, right off. The people have been fooled sufficient. Noodle-headed old jackies and linen-duster and chewing-tobacco and pipe-smoking corner-loafers and street-talking politicians have bragged on men in the corn-field and the working-shops long enough. And we tell these people now that Caldwell will surely take his seat. And we tell them that as to frauds, we have known of no frauds committed, and if they were, we would as soon expect them on the one side as on the other."

TROUBLES OF THE COALITION.

What is facetiously termed the Liberal movement in North Carolina has been rather severely snubbed lately by the Salisbury Watchman, a leading Democratic paper in this State. It is well known that not more than ten Republicans in North Carolina have gone over to Greeley. These ten men have formed a State Liberal Republican Committee, with a full board of officers. The Chairman of the Committee was appointed District-Attorney for this State by President Johnson, and could not take the test oath. He reformed immediately, and joined the Democrats the first chance he got. Daniel R. Goodloe, one of the members of the Committee was United States Marshal for North Carolina under Johnson. His office was not kept in satisfactory shape, and President Grant put him out. The aforesaid Goodloe was struck with a bad case of reform, which culminated in his adhesion to the Greeley party.

H. H. Helper was a United States Assessor under Johnson. It was found that he assessed tobacco in such a way that the Government lost one-twentieth of the tax, and President Grant turned him out. Helper did not quit the Republican Party then. About one year ago he applied for the position of Postmaster at Salisbury, and received the appointment from Grant. He was so inefficient and obnoxious to the citizens of Salisbury that the President had to remove him. He was then prostrated with a very bad case of reform. He joined the Liberals the first opportunity. This handful of patriotic sorehends started a little sheet in Salisbury called the Tribune, edited by Helper. In the last issue the Tribune complains that the Democrats do not recognize them, (the Liberals.) That leading Democrats said to them in the late contest that "they (the Liberals) must be content with the place of simple voters in the Democratic ranks. "Their orators and canvassers were always complimented upon the splendid services they were rendering the cause of Democracy. The Tribune further says:

"Nor was this all. The Liberal Republicans were grossly insulted by some of the Democratic orators. By some of them all men who had ever held any connection with the Republican Party of the State were denounced without stint or mercy. Dishonorable motives were suggested to them for their joining and for their leaving it. Notwithstanding the treatment to which they were subjected, the Executive Committee of the Liberal Repubicans of North Carolina nobly did their duty. They issued an address to the Liberal Republicans of the State, urging them to support the Conservative State ticket. But as they could claim no lot or part in it they were unable to base their appeal upon grounds likely to prove successful. They were too patriotic to stop to quarrel with their 'allies' during the pendency of the contest. They were determined that if the ticket was defeated the blame should not be laid to them. But now, that the contest is over and the victory lost, we feel it to be our duty to publish this as their solemn protest—the protest under which they silently cast their votes for Judge Merrimon and the other gentlemen on the ticket with him. Having been treated as if they were a set of men whose spirit had been crushed out, and who were dead to all sense of self-respect, they cannot do less. Among them are men of as pure and exalted characters, and as high a sense of honor and self-respect, as any that can be found among the Democratic leaders. They will not silently submit to unjust treatment, when it is in their power to protest against it without injury to the cause they have so much at heart."

The Watchman, published at the same place, thus notices the Tribune: "The Tribune is grumbling because some of the Liberals were not placed upon the State ticket, nominated for Congress or something else. Now, to be serious, we really think they should show that they have some strength before they begin to quarrel about position.

It may be that Merrimon's cause was damaged by the indorsement of the Liberal movements, and if an additional dose is to be given us, as the Tribune proposes, it may prove a disaster indeed. There are thousands of Democrats and Conservatives who have not yet swallowed Liberalism and Greeley. We think we can establish the fact that we lost fifty Conservatives for every Liberal gained in the late election. We should not deceive ourselves. The Liberal movement, as such, has no strength in the South. Horace Greeley will not carry a single Southern State that Hancock, Hendricks, Pendleton or any other good Democrat could not have carried." This is from a strong Democratic paper that flies Greeley and Brown at its mast-head.

BROWN TO RESTORE THE SOUTH TO POWER.

I have, within the past few weeks, traveled over parts of Virginia, South Carolina and nearly all of North Carolina. I have talked with hundreds of Democrats. I have been struck with one thing that appears as a common sentiment. The Southern Democrat hate Mr. Greeley while pretending to yield him a hearty and sincere support. They place all their faith in the "tail" of the Cincinnati and Baltimore ticket, simply because Gratz Brown is a Southern man. They say that having apostated from Republicanism like Andy Johnson did—being a Kentuckian by birth and education, a cousin of Frank Blair, and, therefore, a believer in the sentiments expressed in the Brodhead letter—that he will, if elected, be of more service in restoring the "lost cause" than Jeff Davis himself could be. Many cool, deliberate men have even advanced the idea to me that, if elected, Horace Greeley would not live more than thirty days after his inauguration. In response to the remark from me that Greeley is a healthy, well-preserved man, they say that Lincoln was put out of the way, and there will be no difficulty in getting rid of Greeley. I can very readily imagine how easy it would be to get volunteers out of the thousands of Kuklux in the South who have been engaged in committing murder during the past four years, to assassinate Horace Greeley and put the Government in the hands of Gratz Brown, Frank Blair, Jeff. Davis and other traitors and rebels. I find the hope common in the breasts of many Southern people, that some such thing will happen. Control of the Government is what these people want; no matter how it is procured, or by what means. A strong Southern man like Brown, and a member of the Blair family on the ticket for Vice-President, reconciles these people somewhat, to a sacrifice of men and principles; backed up with a firm conviction that Greeley, if elected, will not be alive more than one month after his inauguration. His nomination at the Baltimore Convention, with a Southern man for Vice-President, was equivalent, according to Southern Democratic belief, to a solemn decree, made by the Kuklux in their dens assembled, that Greeley should die.

NORTH CAROLINA SURE FOR GRANT.

The "straight-out" Democrats are developing a great deal of strength in this State. I have conversed with many of them. They think that now is the time to put forward a strong Democratic ticket, and they feel confident that with such a ticket they can succeed. I am reliably informed that North Carolina will have a full delegation in the Louisville Convention, and that a strong "straight-out" Democratic electoral ticket will be put in the field immediately after the adjournment of that Convention. Active steps are now being taken to perfect a thorough organization in the State.

The Republicans of North Carolina are alive, hard at work. Grant and Wilson Clubs are being formed all through the State. The greatest enthusiasm prevails every where, and Republicans have no doubt they will carry the State in November by from ten to fifteen thousand majority. The Democrats give it up.

The three counties will give Grant and Wilson an increased vote over that of 1868. Major Marcus Erwin of this place, candidate for elector at large on the Republican ticket, is one of the ablest speakers in the State, and by far the ablest speaker in Western North Carolina. He is in the field, and will do good work. Look for a glorious victory in November in the Old North State for Grant and Wilson. VIATOR.

Location of the Great Refracting Telescope.

From the San Francisco Bulletin, Aug. 7.

Prof. Davidson, of the Coast Survey, is experimenting near Summit Station, on the Sierra Nevada, at an elevation of 7,200 feet above the sea, to determine the relative importance of great and small altitudes in the use of the telescope for investigations of physical astronomy. It is understood that he has been completely successful, and will recommend a location about 10,000 feet above the sea, near the line of the Central Pacific Railroad, from which it can be readily reached by a short and easily constructed wagon road. Prof. Young, of Dartmouth College, has been experimenting with larger instruments at Sherman, on the Rocky Mountains, at an elevation of 8,242 feet above the sea.

The results of these observers will be presented in reports that will probably lead to the locating of the twenty-seven inch refracting telescope at one of these elevations. The lenses for this telescope are being ground by the Messrs. Clark, of Cambridgeport, Mass., for the United States Government, at an expense of nearly $50,000. With such a telescope, and the high magnifying power of which it will admit the use, there is not over one or two nights per year on the low Atlantic coast where it could be used with its highest magnifying powers. On the Sierra, with our long freedom from clouds, many more favorable opportunities must exist for observations, and we may look forward for marvelous revelations in physical astronomy.

The Revolution in Peru.

The Albany Express publishes the subjoined extracts from a private letter from an Albany officer on the United States steamer Pensacola:

CALLAO, July 27, 1872.

DEAR W——: Though I have not time to write such a full letter as I could wish, yet, as the steamer sails for Panama to-morrow morning, I will send a few hasty lines, and inclose clippings from the late papers.

The revolution is now ended, and most tragically. There has been some pretty sharp fighting, and many innocent persons have lost their lives. The usurper, Gutierres, and two of his brothers are dead, and law and order are in a measure restored. Pardo, the President elect, returned to Lima to-day, and received as a conquering hero might expect to be. The bodies of Guiterres and his two brothers were hung nude from the front of the Cathedral in the Grand Plaza, in Lima, and were afterward taken down and burned by the excited populace.

I was in Lima to-day for a short time, and saw these things myself, otherwise I should hardly credit them. The respectable portion of the community deport themselves much as usual, but the rabble are wild with drink and excitement, and senseless shouts of "Viva Pardo," rend the air continually. It will be several days before order is fully restored.

The officers of our ship were several times fired at, and for two days we did not attempt to go on shore. Our ship and the other men-of-war have, for several days been full of refugees. I did not believe that such a state of things could exist in this nineteenth century, in a country as advanced in civilization as Peru. May this be their last revolution.

Yours truly, W. C. G.

An Aged Couple Celebrate the Sixtieth Anniversary of their Wedding.

From the Elizabeth (N. J.) Journal, Aug. 24.

Last evening the descendants of Mr. and Mrs. Josiah Crane, of Cranford, met at the residence of their son-in-law, Mr. Hampton Cutter, of Woodbridge, to celebrate the sixtieth anniversary of the wedding of their ancestors. Mr. Crane, after whom Cranford is named, is eighty-one years old and his wife is one year his junior. Providence has dealt very bountifully with this aged couple; they still enjoy good health, have an abundance of this world's goods and all their children are living and well-settled in the world. The latter are Mrs. Hampton Cutter, of Woodbridge; Mrs. Job. S. Williams, of Roselle, Mr. John G. Crane and Mr. Josiah Crane, Jr., of Cranford. Of their forty-six descendants, there are besides the above eighteen grandchildren, including Mr. Hampton C. Williams, of this city, and ten great-grandchildren. The afternoon and evening were spent in happy congratulations. So large a family gathering is seldom seen, and one under so favorable circumstances less frequent. In the evening a presentation of a gold-headed cane was made to Mr. Crane from his grandchildren, and to Mrs. Crane was presented a breastpin neatly wrought with the hair of all her children. Rev. Mr. Lucas, pastor of the Presbyterian Church of Woodbridge, made the presentation speech, in which he included several happy incidents. The occasion was one of deep interest and will long be remembered.

Three Hearses for a Single Funeral.

From the Honolulu Gazette.

The wife of a foreigner, a native woman, died in this city recently, and according to a time-honored custom in the country where the husband originated, that individual proceeded, as his fathers had done before him when a similar event occurred in the family, to "wake" the corpse the night previous to burial. This transplanted custom was observed on Nuuanu street, and becoming the occasion. Relatives and friends congregated from far and near, and, as a matter of course, when morning dawned no one appeared to consider about the grave ceremony which was to take place during the day. The disconsolate husband was for a time oblivious to anything but himself, and a thoughtful friend undertook the sad office of making the necessary preparations for the funeral. A short time elapsed when a second kind friend, unaware of the thoughtful attention of the other, also made similar preparations, each appointing the same hour for the hearse to make its appearance. The husband, it appears, had done the same thing the evening previous, and at the same hour three sombre-looking vehicles, each driven by a serious looking individual in immaculate black, drew up in front of the residence on the same errand. The melancholy procession was delayed for a few moments until explanations ensued, but whether they all accompanied the corpse to its final resting-place we were not informed.

Real Estate Speculators in Boston.

From the Boston Commercial Bulletin, Aug. 24.

Some of our real estate speculators, after having made on paper fortunes of magnificent and astonishing proportions, are allowing very moderate-sized notes bearing their signatures to pass into the hands of notaries, or else to lie upon forced extensions in the hands of their payees. The fact is, the public generally is coming to the conclusion, which was reached in this journal a long time ago, that the suburban house-lot business has been altogether overdone.

Today the notes of hand made by the speculators, who are the most widely extended over unproductive tracts of real estate that have been bought to hold on for a rise, are the most unattractive securities that can be presented to investors, who are scouring the paper market in search of high rates and a good degree of safety. If money continues to increase in stringency we shall have reports of more shortcomings of the great real estate movers of '71 and '72. Some of these operators have been shrewd enough to clear themselves from all entangling alliances, so that they today stand high and safe, the burdens resting upon the parties who are saddled with lands which they, the first handlers, are happily rid of.

Dairymen's Convention.

A Convention of the dairymen and farmers of the State of New-York will be held in the Young Men's Association Hall, Twenty-third street and Fourth-avenue, on Tuesday, the 24th September next, beginning at 1 P. M.

A call has already been issued by the milk producers of this City, who intend to take the sale of milk out of the hands of the middle-men, who adulterate it to such a degree as to render it almost worthless, and what is of far more importance, highly injurious to the consumers. With that object in view, the dairymen and farmers will unite and form a protective association, to be known as the United Farmers' Milk Company. The City will be mapped out into districts, and each milk producer will take as many as he can attend to.

GOV. WOODFORD.

Large Republican Meeting at Greenwich, Conn.

Promises and Performances of the Party of Freedom—Gen. Grant and His Record—"Let Well Enough Alone."

The ratification meeting on Saturday night of the Republicans at Greenwich, Conn., was a most enthusiastic affair. It was held in the City Hall, which was much too small for the crowd that poured in, for not only were there delegations from the neighboring villages, but there was a large unofficial attendance from Stamford. The hall was illuminated inside and out in the most brilliant style, and there were bonfires and discharges of rockets all along the main street. Inside the decorations were of an unusually valuable quality, for, besides the usual paraphernalia of flags and mottoes, there were two costly portraits of Grant and Wilson. One side of the hall was occupied by a colossal head of Gen. Grant strikingly well executed. Chairs apparently being scarce, seats were constructed with planking in the genuine circus style, the benches and the few chairs being devoted to the ladies, of whom between seventy and eighty were present, all of them brimful of enthusiasm, and eager to assist in canvassing for their favorite candidate. The meeting was called to order by Joseph E. Russell, one of the most respectable citizens of the place, and a recent convert from the Democracy. Col. Husted R. Hoyt was elected President of the meeting, and was most warmly received. He thanked them for the honor done him, and declared that in the enthusiasm of the faces around him he saw the surest omen of a grand success. He deprecated making a long speech, as the meeting was to be addressed by a gentleman of famous eloquence, Lieut.-Gov. Stewart L. Woodford. [Cheers.] The following Vice-Presidents were then appointed: Col. Thomas A. Mead, Thomas Mayo, Josiah Wilcox, William R. Talbot, Joseph S. Marshall, James H. Knapp, Allen Howe, Lorenzo Finney. Also, the following Secretaries: Philip W. Holmes, Lieut. Benjamin Wright, Charles E. Studwell. These gentlemen took their seats on the platform, and the following resolutions were read in the most distinct and emphatic way by Mr. P. W. Holmes:

Whereas, We have the assurance of Horace Greeley, given in 1871, that a Democratic triumph means a restoration to power of those who deserted their seats in Congress and their places under the last Democratic President, to plunge the country into the red sea of secession and rebellion; that as a party it would come into power with the hate, the chagrin, the mortification of ten bitter years to guide its steps; that it would hail the tidings of national bankruptcy with unalloyed gladness, and that whatever chastisement may be deserved by our national sins, we must hope that this disgrace and humiliation will be spared us; and

Whereas, We have neither the effrontery to assert nor the credulity to assume that the Democracy is more worthy of public confidence in 1872 than it was in 1871, but, on the contrary, believe that it is today a party marshaled under false colors by dishonest and unscrupulous leaders for the renewal and reopening of certain national issues, fought out and settled during the rebellion; therefore,

Resolved, That an utter abandonment of all pretense of political principle and honesty, for the sake of acquiring place and exercising power, is the distinguishing trait of that portion of the Democratic Party which indorsed the nomination and which advocates the election of Horace Greeley.

Resolved, That it is eminently just that a distinction should be drawn between the worst and the best elements of the Democracy—between those who dumbly bare their backs to the party lash, and those who will never consent to the sacrifice of individual constancy and loyalty, at the behest of unscrupulous leaders and political charlatans.

Resolved, That we regard with profound commiseration and pity that man who, in his indiscretion and weakness, has been entrenant to the cause to which his public life has been devoted, and entered into a conspiracy with his life-long political enemies, whereby, in consideration of the abandonment of principle, he has been promised the highest office in the gift of the American people.

Resolved, That in politics, as in love and in war, an honest suitor for favor has no right to be suddenly conservative; and that any man, in any department of life, is a just object of distrust and suspicion, whenever he becomes, without adequate reason, more popular with his old enemies than with his old friends.

Resolved, That this mutual congratulation and hand-shaking between the Greeley Republican and the Greeley Democrat is at best a ghastly farce, and that no man should be caught in such company who has marched under the old flag in triumph with the boys in blue, or been a loyal soldier in the ranks of the Republican army.

Resolved, That the Republican Party had its origin in the uprising of a great nation against the nationalization and extension of human bondage, and that re-enforced by thousands of loyal Democrats it was the party of the Union against secession; that since the war it has been the party of reconstruction against anarchy, the party of public faith against all forms of repudiation, and the only party of liberty and equal rights to all men, without regard to clime, to creed, or to color.

Resolved, That not one dollar of the lawful money of the United States shall with our consent ever be paid as the reward of treason; nor shall a single Confederate obligation ever be liquidated, assumed, or in any manner recognized by the General Government.

Resolved, That the Government, under Ulysses S. Grant, has been honestly, justly, wisely and economically administered, and that the declarations of political opponents to the contrary are, in the main, the product of misapprehension, exaggeration and misrepresentation.

Resolved, That the Republican Party, under Grant and Wilson as standard-bearers, is the only party to which we can safely intrust the present interests, the future honor, progress and welfare of the whole nation.

These resolutions were adopted with three tremendous cheers for Grant and Wilson, the ladies joining in with shrill soprano cries and waving their handkerchiefs. The President then introduced Gen. Woodford, who was welcomed in the most gratifying manner, everybody, including even the officers on the platform, joining in the applause.

Gen. Woodford said: Sixteen years ago it was my privilege to plead in this village for the Republican Party, which has since that time grown with the national growth, and been identified with every national improvement. At that time we promised four things—the restriction of slavery, the building of a Pacific Railway, the founding of a Homestead law, and the restriction of polygamy. We obtained power upon the strength of these promises, and we stand today before the nation having fulfilled every pledge that we gave then. Owing to the unsettled condition of the nation through war, we have not thus far been able to uproot the system of polygamy, but the Pacific Railway, the mineral discoveries, and the moral influence of the Administration have gone far to do it, and I believe that it will be completely destroyed during Grant's second term, if he should obtain it. Thus every pledge given in 1856 has been honorably and religiously redeemed.

So long as it was possible to ward off an internecine strife, the praying men and women of the North never failed to go down upon their knees in the hope that the South would relent from its purpose. But they would not, and we went into the struggle, not hating them, but hating slavery, with a determination to annihilate it. Then came the suppression of the rebellion. Our friends, though they were our political opponents, told us that we should never be able to pay the cost of the struggle. But we told them that just as our men were constant in war unto the end, so would they be honest in peace until they had paid off the uttermost farthing. The Republican Party has for a long time held the supreme authority and power, and yet they have been met with a suggestion that they should take down their banners, for the party was dead. Dead! Why! What caused the Republican Party to die! For want of power was it? Yet it flogged the most gigantic conspiracy ever known. Dead for want of financial ability was it? Yet, by unheard-of wisdom, it has been able to decrease the debt by three hundred millions, and at the same time to decrease the taxes by one-half. Dead! Why, if the Republican Party is dead, it must be from excess of good health. Look back over the way that the nation has come. The history of the Republican Party, as I said before, is literally the history of the last twelve years. It has been the Republican Party which saved the country. It has been the Republican Party that reconstructed the South. It has been the Republican Party that has announced its intention of paying off the debt. But after all, what of this? The Democrats have acknowledged that we were right, for they have given up their principles—have adopted ours, and have nominated the publisher of what was once the greatest Republican paper in the country for their candidate. It is a mistake to suppose that they were ever opposed to us. The fact is they have been behind us all the time, and out of breath trying to catch up with us. After re-enacting the Missouri Compromise in 1850, the Democratic Party met in Convention at Baltimore in 1852, and pledged themselves to accept the legislation of 1850 as a finality, and never to reopen the question. In 1854 they tore the whole thing up in the Kansas and Nebraska bill, and admitted slavery there, because it was Federal territory. Let me suggest that if they were so false there in Baltimore in their Baltimore platform of 1872, they may be just as false in their Baltimore platform of 1872. Upon the question of slavery in the Territories in 1856 they beat us, until the question came up again in 1860. Then they said the South had a right to secede. In 1864 they found out that the South had no right to secede, and that we were right in flogging them back if we could. But then they said we had tried and had failed. Next year, however, they found out that they were wrong again. From year to year these gentlemen have been converted by fragments until today they stand thoroughly penitent, confessing that they were wrong throughout, and taking a Republican for their leader. The fact is that they have constantly been moving into Republican camps, but always four years behind, and in 1876 nothing will remain for them but to nominate Gen. Grant for President. [Immense cheering and laughter.] Between the two platforms there is indeed but little difference. All there is in the Democratic platform which is not in the Republican is the one-term doctrine and the proviso that their President shall recommend free trade or protection, as circumstances shall determine. This last idea is certainly peculiar, and is, as far as I can understand, opposed to a certain clause in the Constitution concerning the duties of the President. Suppose an ultra Free Trade bill is passed, can Mr. Greeley conscientiously sign that bill? Those who are true friends of Mr. Greeley will certainly hesitate before they place him in that position. Now, of what is the Democratic Party most proud of in their records of the past? Is it not in the power of the Executive to wield the veto? Now we say that a President should be a man, not a thing. Should Veto what he thinks is wrong, and if it is passed over his head he should enforce it because it is then the law. Against that most extraordinary declaration of Cincinnati we place the declaration of Gen. Grant that he would always have a policy upon every question, but no policy to enforce against the will of the people, believing that the best way to get rid of a bad law was to insist upon its being carried out.

I have no intention to fling dirt. It is not in my inclination, nor in my habits, and I leave it for those who like the practice. Mr. Greeley and Mr. Brown were both distinguished gentlemen, and they were nominated by a coalition, of which I shall simply say that it was stronger thirty days ago than it is now, and is stronger today than it will be thirty days to come. But those persons who advocate them have not been obary in throwing dirt by the wholesale against Gen. Grant. They have accused him of being a nepotist, and it appears indeed that he has appointed some thirteen relatives or connections. Had Gen. Grant been a trained politician perhaps he would not have appointed one of them, for the little good it did to the relative was more than counterbalanced by the harm it did the party and the President. But this I will assert, that there never was an hour when he was called upon to decide between his relatives, and the nation, or the party, that he did not unhesitatingly sacrifice his relatives. [Great cheers.] Witness Judge Dent, of Mississippi, and Corbin, of New-York. [Great cheers.] And, by the bye, out of these thirteen relatives only one is a blood relative, the others being connected with his wife, which shows, I suppose, that he is a good husband. [Loud cheering and laughter.] The one blood relative is his old father, who was appointed by Andrew Johnson; and I suppose that no one will cry out against him for not turning out his old father. [Cheers.] In the San Domingo affair, when Gen. Grant found that he was acting against the will of the people, although there were many good patriotic reasons for his desire to annex San Domingo, he at once, in the spirit of his old declaration that he would enforce no policy against the will of the people, gave up the wish of his heart, proving himself far greater than he had been at Vicksburg or Appomattox, as he that ruleth his own spirit is greater than he that taketh a city. [Cheers.] Never from that hour, either in public or in private, has he mentioned the subject. [Cheers.]

These are some of the charges brought against him by the Massachusetts Senator. You see how small they are. Let us go on to the next. What is it? That President Grant takes gifts. I say it is false. As General he received presents, as Sherman did, as Meade did, as Sheridan did, as that distinguished General, George B. McClellan, did. But this much I will say, that Grant, since he has been President, has received houses or money, jewels or land, utters what he knows, or ought to know, to be an error. Here is another item in the great account of Sumner. He says he is a quarrelsome man; he calls him the great quarreler. To those who know him, how meek, how patient, how honorable, how full of friendliness, how void of rancor or envy; this charge seems horrible. He went on his way, doing his duty in his own simple, grand way, giving due praise here, restraining censure there, winning the admiration of any one. It is true that he quarreled with some, with a gentleman named Bushner, with another named Pemberton, and I know not how many, but the one old quarrel with Robert E. Lee. You know what became of his opponents. I would advise you, my Liberal Republican friends and my Democratic hearers, not to quarrel with him, for if you do, he will whip you, as sure as fate, and the grave under the apple-tree at Appomattox, where the bones of the lost cause lie moldering, will be opened to receive what will be left of your coalition.

In the full meaning of his noble phrase, "Let us have peace," Gen. Grant has tried to enforce the laws. You will say then—why the Kuklux acts? I might retort, and ask why did Horace Greeley clamor for its passage? But I pass that. I say it was simple manhood, after having given the negro his freedom, to see that he had the full enjoyment of what we had given him. It was simple manhood, and Grant would have been base had he not enforced them. What man in the South has been robbed of his property, what man has been refused of his acres, what man has been disfranchised of his vote? True, there are some hundreds who have been debarred from holding office, because they were the ring-leaders of a foul rebellion, and many of them had been educated at Annapolis and West Point at the expense of the country that they tried to murder. No, the Republican Party has not been vindictive, and Gen. Grant has not been a cruel despot. The desire of the party and the President alike is for the fullest harmony among all classes, and the greatest prosperity for every class.

Let well enough alone," is the advice I would give you, "let well enough alone," and trust to the great soldier who will carry us through this way with the same patience that never wearied, and the same skill that is never at fault, just as as he did in 1864. Let us remember the words of Horace Greeley, Gen. Grant has never been beaten and never will be. Let us remember his further prophesy, "As goes North Carolina, so goes the nation." It indeed requires no prophet's tongue to tell, no inspired eye to see, that if we trust the Administration for the next four years to the loyal and skillful hands that have held it in the past, we shall be rewarded with a prosperity that shall bury all discords, and shall give to American citizens all that man is permitted to reap of success and happiness here below.

Three splendid cheers were then given for Gen. Woodford, and three more for Grant and Wilson, and then the meeting adjourned. Steps were immediately taken to organize a company of tanners for the campaign, in addition to the Grant and Wilson Club here, which already numbers 178. The meeting was in everything a superb success.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Country Board.

To the Editor of the New-York Times:

Your correspondent in yesterday's paper on country board, is undoubtedly one of the many who are looking for first-class board and accommodations at a low price.

The statement he makes is simply false, scurrilous, and ridiculous; with the exception that there is a starch factory and fish-floating factory, (neither of which can be considered a nuisance,) there is not a word of truth in the statement. Five hundred dollars will be deposited in bank to his credit on his proving the other assertions he makes. The writer knowing both parties, and not interested on either side is prepared to back the aforesaid proposal up.

The Administration Abroad.

To the Editor of the New-York Times:

It may interest your readers to know how the Administration of President Grant is appreciated in foreign lands. During the Administration of President Johnson I visited many of the West India Islands, the United States of Columbia and Venezuela. Since then I have revisited many of the same localities, and have resided much of the time abroad. I therefore can speak confidently of that which I know and have witnessed. Americans in these countries have felt and do feel more security and find the American flag more respected under the present Administration than ever before. This is the common remark of all Americans in these countries.

During the late revolution in Venezuela the steamers of an American company were seized there by the revolutionists and used on the waters of the Orinoco River. Immediately on hearing of this outrage, the American Minister was dispatched to Caracas to inquire into it and demand redress. There was a more potent dispatch immediately followed, in the sloop-of-war Shawmut, to inforce our Government's demands. On the arrival of the Shawmut the steamers were released, and the revolution subsided, much to the joy and satisfaction of all business men and to the honor of our Government. Very much credit is also due to the very efficient and wise measures of Commander Potter, of the Shawmut. When we remember that never before in the history of the many revolutions in these countries, and seizures of steamers on the Orinoco and Magdalena Rivers, has any vessel of war been dispatched to see with naval eyes if American interests were respected.

THE NEW-YORK TIMES.
New-York City.

We beg to announce that the first of a series of CAMPAIGN EDITIONS of the TIMES is now ready. It is printed in large, clear type, and is by far the best document for Republicans issued from the Press.

We desire to call the particular attention of Republicans in all parts of the country to this paper. It has been prepared with the greatest care, and is adapted to readers in every State of the Union. It is issued at a price which barely covers the cost of paper and printing—namely, a cent and a half a copy in quantities of not less than a hundred, or two cents for each single copy.

Price $1 50 per hundred, or $15 per thousand. Single copies, 2 cents each.

Readers out of the City, desiring one or more copies, can have them mailed direct. Price 4 cents each, including postage.

The speech of Mr. GEORGE WILLIAM CURTIS, which we reproduce in our columns today, is worth the careful consideration of our readers. It presents the issues of the Presidential canvass in a forcible and thoughtful manner. Mr. CURTIS strips away once more the disguise worn by the Greeley party, and shows that the controlling members of that party are Democrats, and that if Mr. GREELEY should be elected, no one could prevent the Democrats having everything their own way. Why else do Democrats support GREELEY? Because they love him? People who will not take the trouble to reason for themselves on the subject, will do well to read and reflect upon Mr. CURTIS' speech.

It seems that the "campaign documents" supplied from the office of Mr. GREELEY'S newspaper are not taking so well as the Greeley managers hoped. At any rate, a pathetic appeal was put forward in the said paper on Saturday, begging people not to depend upon them. "Very few voters read them. They are used for kindling and shaving paper." And are these the base uses to which Mr. SUMNER'S wondrous collection of quotations has come at last? The same undeniable authority also complains that "this is a great season for impecunious political suckers." We suspect that the Greeley managers have sorrowful reasons for making that confession. Two or three of their adherents have been to us offering to "sell out;" and we must say that more horrible examples of the genus "sucker" we have never seen. An unprincipled combination of scheming politicians naturally draws all such creatures to it.

In our article of Saturday we spoke of the importance of selecting upright and learned men to fill the vacancies on the Benches of the Supreme and Superior Court, occasioned by the removal of CARDOZO, BARNARD and MCCUNN. All these were Tammany Judges. The Bar Association should see to it that these places are well filled. An important duty is cast on that good organization. They may not be able to make nominations, but their moral power should control them. Unfit men should not be allowed to be elected. Able and experienced men, in whom confidence is reposed, should be placed in these important places. In addition to the Supreme and Superior Court Judges there is to be elected a City Judge and a District-Attorney. The terms of GUNNING S. BEDFORD and SAMUEL B. GARVIN, the former City Judge and the latter District-Attorney, expire on the last day of December of this year. These places are also to be filled at the election in November next. We hope wise officers for these positions will be selected.

A complete statement of the receipts and expenditures to date on account of the Children's Fund will be found on another page. The total amount expended so far, for excursions and in the work of sick relief, is $10,289 17, and, as the total of the subscriptions to date is $18,900 25, the balance remaining on hand is $8,611 08. This balance will be, of course, considerably reduced by the expenses still to be incurred for further excursions, and the outlay which is being made every day on behalf of the objects of the in-door charity. The management of the excursions has entailed upon the members of our staff intrusted with it untiring vigilance and careful and conscientious attention to a large number of petty but essential details. Some idea of the extent of the work of such relief may be obtained from a glance over the statistics of families visited and relieved which we furnish today. To a reflective mind, these figures are neither dry nor uninteresting, for they furnish a record of human sorrow assuaged, of the hand of death arrested, and of the carrying into the homes of the poor of indubitable evidence that the blessed message of peace and good-will which the angels brought has not been forgotten among men.

Tweed & Co. as "Reformers."

It was always tolerably certain that when the Tammany thieves were found guilty at the bar of public opinion, they would instantly come forward and indignantly denounce the robberies which they had carried on. When we were endeavoring to convince the public that TWEED and his friends were thieves, the Tribune called upon those injured innocents to bring "hundreds" of actions for libel against us; the Herald said they constituted the best government the community ever saw; and the World was almost hysterical in its admiration of the entire gang. Now, however, all is changed. TWEED & Co. having been "found out," appear in the field as Reformers, backed up, as usual, by the Herald. Some day that paper may condescend to give its readers the proofs of the Tammany frauds, which we published over a year ago, and which were unluckily suppressed by the Tammany journal. At present it is engaged in the task of trying to make the public believe that Tammany is the "party of Reform." It will fail in that, just as it failed in convincing the people last year that Tammany was honest. We are now assured that the Tweedites will "enter the field as the Reform party of 1871"—meaning, of course, 1872. To a journal which is chiefly devoted to the discussion of politics in Central Africa; the fact that we are living in 1872 and not in 1871 is of little consequence. What are American politics compared with the decennial vicissitudes of Ujiji, or the prospects of the Imaum of Muscat?

By way of proving that TWEED, SWEENY & Co. are really your only true "Reformers," our African contemporary takes the opportunity of "pitching into" the last Legislature. It was guilty, so the Herald says, of "shameless frauds and corruptions." Now, as our readers are well aware, we have never flattered the last Legislature—it fell short of the work which was reasonably expected of it. But in comparison with TWEED'S Legislatures, it was a model of purity and excellence. After all, we owe to it the downfall of BARNARD, CARDOZO and MCCUNN—in itself a Reform which few of us ventured to hope to see accomplished this year. Let us never forget that the Herald's political friends put those men on the Bench, and kept them there. We should have waited a long while before the Herald demanded their removal. In fact, our Tanganyika friend generally opposes all reforms until they are accomplished, and then abuses the party which does the work for its alliance with the corruption it has overthrown.

In some respects, however, our contemporary is quite right. It advises its allies, the Democrats and Greeleyites, not to draw their candidate for Governor from the State Senate. The glee with which the nomination of any member of the Senate at Utica would have been received by our opponents, may be partly gathered from the following significant passages extracted from the Ujiji Herald of yesterday:

"As the Republican Party was responsible for this depraved Legislature, it was reasonably expected that the Republican State Convention would have repudiated and denounced its members and have called upon the Republican Senators who hold over next year to resign their seats and suffer the people to elect a new Senate with the new House of Assembly. This expectation was not fulfilled. No word of condemnation was uttered against the men who had betrayed the cause of Reform and sunk the State Capitol deeper than it had ever been sunk before in the mire of corruption. Indeed, the Legislature of last Winter was honored in the Utica Convention. One of the Senators was the most prominent candidate for the office of Governor, and would have been the nominee," &c., &c.

And again:

"The Liberal Convention in especial should guard jealously against the attendance of any tainted member of the existing Legislature as a delegate, and should not suffer the name of a Republican Senator or Assemblyman to be mentioned for any office. The resolutions should speak out plainly in denunciation of the Albany corruptions, regardless of persons, and should declare against the renomination of any of the present Assemblymen in a single district of the State."

Perhaps these hints may open the eyes of some of our Republican friends to the real nature of the folly they were invited to commit at Utica. During the session of last Winter, we frequently warned the Senate of the odium it would incur if it did not show more earnestness in the cause of Reform. Now the friends of Senators are very wroth because we did not choose to recommend that a candidate for the Governorship should be drawn from that body. The plain truth is that we wish to see the Republican cause triumph, and the personal "claims" of this man or the other are nothing to us.

The canvass in this State will turn upon the Reform question, as it ought to do. We were anxious above all things to get candidates identified with the cause of Reform and not drawn from a body which allowed TWEED to remain a member of it throughout. Such candidates have been nominated, and now the people know perfectly well that their victory of last year can be rendered complete and final by the election of the Republican ticket. Is there a man in this State who would pretend to question the earnestness or integrity of Gen. DIX? Elect him, and the City and State are safe. TWEED and his gang will be utterly dispersed. At present, they are standing by watching with breathless interest the attempt which is being made to persuade the public that they are "Reformers." The people, however, gave them a long trial, and have no desire to place themselves in their power again. Gen. DIX and Gen. ROBINSON have no alliances, open or secret, with Tammany. That cannot be said of Mr. GREELEY, or of any men whom the Greeleyites are likely to put up for office in this State.

Doolittle Again.

We have waited patiently for that "something" which the Greeley organ declared Mr. DOOLITTLE would say, but the Ex-Senator, though loquacious enough at ordinary times, has suddenly been gifted with a great talent for silence. He cannot deny the genuineness of the letters we have produced, and any defense of the transaction they disclose is impossible. Upon the whole, then, DOOLITTLE may be taking the most prudent course in suddenly retiring from the stump, and ceasing to deliver any more addresses in favor of "honesty and reform." There are two or three others of "Old Honesty's" orators and advocates concerning whom we wish to say a few words shortly—but first we will give DOOLITTLE a few days more for consideration.

In the meantime, there are only three papers which openly defend or make light of the Doolittle correspondence—the New-York Nation, the Buffalo Courier, and the New-York Tribune. Concerning the first, it is only necessary to say that since a certain very silly fit of rage into which it worked itself concerning the TIMES, it has been in a state bordering upon lunacy whenever the TIMES is mentioned, and shrieks perpetually for some one to shut up its editors in the deepest dungeons of the Tombs. Its disappointment in this amiable wish adds to the exasperation which it entertained toward us because we told a few plain truths about its friend SCHURZ and itself. Its ideas of public morality may be judged of from the fact, that it defends DOOLITTLE on the ground that he is no worse than JIM ASHLEY—another Greeley man, by the way—and thus we learn from this "great moral teacher" that two blacks do make a white. We dismiss this jaundiced critic, and turn to a more mendacious, though less passionate, one—the Buffalo Courier. This is the "able" paper which abused us for being Musselmen, or something of that sort, when we were exposing the Tammany Ring; which swore by its grandmother's bones that TWEED and his friends were the honestest men in the world; and which denounced our transcripts from the Controller's books as forgeries. Perhaps the testimony of a journal with such a character as that is not worth much notice, and hence it is that we very seldom do notice it. But, as it repeats its Tammany cry of last year, and says that the Doolittle letters are "forgeries," it is our painful duty to inform the persons making that statement that they and the truth are on very bad terms together. We have offered to submit the Doolittle correspondence to three persons—one chosen by DOOLITTLE himself, one by ourselves, and one by these two umpires. If a committee so formed decide that the Doolittle letters are forgeries, we will undertake to make ample amends to DOOLITTLE. For a newspaper like the Courier—a hired tool of Tammany's—to keep up a cockatoo cry of "forgery" after that offer is a piece of folly of which even very dishonest people, who have a grain of sense in their heads, would feel ashamed.

A Vexed Question.

Does a photographer own that which he has produced but has not sold; and can his customers claim property in that which does not belong to them? These questions are either eminently absurd or hopelessly difficult. Since they present themselves to every photographer, and to every one who has photographic dealings with him, we may decide that they cannot be wholly absurd. Their difficulty, however, increases the more one attempts to solve them, and to most men they seem to have established themselves in the exhaustless Dundrearyan category of "things no fellow can find out."

To their solution a Court of law in this City has finally lent its learning and discretion. A citizen, whose wife had been photographed by a Metropolitan photographer, was recently enraged to learn that a copy of the photograph adorned the artist's gallery. Without delay he rushed to the gallery, and gave its proprietor five minutes in which to decide whether he would remove the picture, or witness its immediate and irreparable destruction. The photographer asserts that in this emergency he proposed a compromise, and offered to sell the photograph to the irate husband. The latter is alleged to have agreed to this compromise, but as he subsequently refused to pay the price said to have been agreed upon, the whole matter has been brought to the august tribunal of the Third District Court.

This Court is doubtless learned in the law, but the task now set before it is one which can receive no aid from legal precedents, for the sufficient reason that no such precedents exist. On behalf of the photographer the Court will be told, that unless the artist's customers expressly purchase the negatives of their photographs, they have no property in them. So far this would seem to be sufficiently clear. But the photographer further claims that he has the right to use as he may see fit negatives which belong solely to him; and that if he chooses to print additional photographs from them, wherewith to decorate his gallery and advertise his business, no one has the right to forbid him so to do. On the other hand, the husband of the photographed wife appeals to a common instinct of humanity, when he asks the Court to forbid the public exposure of his wife's photograph. Though he may not have paid the price demanded, in order to constitute him sole owner of the negative, he still claims that his marital rights entitle him to the sole privilege of displaying or concealing from public view the facial attractions of his wife, and that this right is nullified if the photographer flaunts her counterfeit presentment in the faces of his daily customers. "Is it endurable," cries the husband, "that my wife's beauty shall be made the bait wherewith to tempt the Thomases, Richards, and Jeremiahs that typify the vulgar throng, to enter this photographer's gallery?"

"Shall I be forbidden by a jealous husband," answers the prosaic photographer, "to do what I will with my own negatives?" The one side urges the rights of property against the marital rights of the other. The husband claims that the sanctity of married life will be violated if the photographer is judicially authorized to ornament his gallery with the pictures of attractive wives. The photographer asserts that his business will be ruined if he can display no specimens of his art except the uninteresting portraits of undesirable young men. It is to the decision of this intricate case that the Third District Court is now compelled to bring its judicial mind, and it is seldom that a Court, presumably desirous of conciliating the good will of both husbands and photographers—two very important classes of our voting population—has been placed in so difficult a position.

What the decision will be no one can, of course, predict. In case, however, the Court is a temporizing Court, desirous to avoid difficulties and addicted to compromise, there will be an opportunity for it to decide that, while the photographer absolutely uses negatives which he has not sold, and can therefore use them for the end for which negatives are designed, no husband, with a proper respect for his wife, will permit her portrait to be used as an advertisement. By this course both the rights of property and the rights of husbands will be maintained, while the contradictory character of the decision will secure the popularity of the Court with both husbands and photographers, and will leave the real question at issue in the condition of insoluble doubt in which it now stands.

The Vienna World's Fair.

The great International Exposition of the industries of the world to be opened at Vienna, on the 1st of next May, bids fair to excel anything of the kind ever attempted. The Prater, in which the buildings are now in process of erection, is a beautiful park, some six times larger than the Champ de Mars at Paris; while the main Exhibition Palace is nearly double the size of the building at the Parisian Exhibition of 1867.

Advices from Austria assure us of the deep and wide-spread interest taken in the enterprise by all classes of people in Middle and Western Europe, as well as in Turkey and Egypt. Hungary, which is fast becoming a region of great agricultural importance, is full of enthusiasm in the matter, and is looking forward to the exhibition of American labor-saving machinery with the warmest interest—an interest heightened by the regard which is entertained in that country for our institutions and our inventive skill.

The authorities of the Exposition have assured the United States Commissioner that the space reserved for this country will be reserved until the latest moment, and that the desire is universal that our country should make a large and creditable showing of her great variety of skillful, artistic, and useful productions. It would seem a great mistake for our citizens not to take advantage of an opportunity so tempting, by which they can enter into open competition with the European world, under circumstances as favorable as can ever be expected. At the Paris Fair, we are informed, much discontent was created among the American exhibitors by alleged neglect, and by the somewhat questionable conduct of a portion of the United States Commission. The high character of Gen. VAN BUREN, the Commissioner appointed by our Government to the Exposition at Vienna, will in time win the confidence of our citizens.

He expresses his determination to fail in no exertion to make the American department a success, and in securing equal and exact justice to each American exhibitor; and the fact that he holds in his hands the appointment and removal of his assistants, warrants the conclusion that he will be able to accomplish his purpose. A large number of applications for space have already been made on the part of leading manufacturers and inventors, and it is to be hoped that their example will be followed. A large and rapidly increasing market is to be found in the countries of which Austria is the centre. The German, Hugarian, and Italian people form a most important part of our population, and the large yearly emigration from those countries teaches us the high estimation in which our country is held there. By all means, then, let the American department at their great Fair be filled with the choicest specimens of our industry.

Congress has made no appropriation as yet toward the expenses of the Exhibition, but the omission will doubtless be remedied at its next meeting in December. In the meantime, applications should be filed with the Commissioner at his office, No. 51 Chambers-street, New-York, in order that the proper space may be secured. The Austrian Parliament has lately passed a law for the fullest protection of patents, even going so far as to permit each exhibitor to take out a certificate, free of expense, securing him the priority for obtaining an Austrian patent. The law which heretofore has obliged American inventors, by way of protection, to manufacture their articles in Austria, &c., is also abrogated, for the welfare of the exhibition, and every disposition is manifested to throw around exhibitors the security of well-considered and comprehensive statutes.

The State Canvass and Reform.

Last year the people of New-York City achieved a glorious victory against administrative corruption, by making the simple issue of the canvass one between honest government and official rascality, between public plunderers and their allies on the one side, and the representatives of a new and better era of public service on the other. Some of the men who were thus selected disappointed the expectation which had been formed of them; others did not. It was perhaps too much to expect that the influence of long years of a depraved standard of public morality could be neutralised at a single effort. Any way, the selection of candidates was as carefully made as was possible under the circumstances, and the experience which has been gained will be invaluable in guiding us toward a better choice this year. The main thing to keep in view is that the people triumphed in November last because their purpose was single, and their demand intelligible: "Give us honest, capable men first, and we will consider their political stripe afterward." If reform is to complete the work which was left undone in City affairs last year, the same simple basis must be laid for the local campaign, and the same plain issue submitted to the honest voter. That these principles have the approval of the Republican Party has been amply demonstrated in the choice of a State ticket. For, it would have been the merest travesty of a reform campaign, had we proposed to vest the Executive power of the State in a man who could not be fully trusted to give a fearless and unwavering support to those whose task it will be to reorganize the Government of this City, in the interests of honesty, economy, and administrative ability.

The feeling of relief and satisfaction with which that true representative of the Reform Democracy, Mr. W. F. HAVEMEYER, greets the nomination of Gen. DIX will be shared by every citizen of New-York, without distinction of party, who has an interest in the prosperity and is concerned for the good name of the commercial Metropolis of the continent. Suppose that instead of a Hoffman we had had a DIX at the State Capitol since the beginning of 1869. Does any one imagine that with a Governor like DIX the legislative annals of the State would have received the indelible stain of the Directors' Classification act, that the swindling tax levies of the Tweed régime would have been signed without protest and without warning, that all the mass of contradictory and oppressive Ring legislation would have been allowed to accumulate to the loss and bewilderment of the taxpayer, and to the profit of professional swindlers? Does anyone suppose, further, that we should have witnessed the fresh scandal of the State Executive deliberately taking sides with the plunderers of the City Treasury, because he felt that his interest and theirs was identical, had a man of the unblemished reputation and the resolute integrity of the Republican nominee for Governor been in the place of HOFFMAN? Such reflections help to show how intimately the good government of the City is associated with the character of the occupant of the Governor's chair. When we remember that the City and County Government of New-York is intrusted every year with the spending of as much money as would cover the entire annual expenditures of those five great States, Massachusetts, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Illinois and Missouri, it becomes very apparent how vast is the purely material importance of having the surpervisory power over the legislation which sanctions this outlay in safe keeping.

Briefly, then, the Republican Party has shown itself to be earnest and resolute on the question of State and Municipal reform by placing in nomination for the Governorship a man who may be depended on to lend a powerful impetus to the progress of both. The people will throw their entire influence in this City on the side of the local candidates, who are, without distinction of party, judged most competent to bear the same banner that led to victory last year. They will be found fighting side by side in the local contest with Democrats who prefer true to sham professions of reform. We confidently look for the co-operation of all decent citizens in electing a State ticket, which will afford one of the best possible guarantees that the purification of the City Government will not be defeated by Executive trickery at Albany.

Mr. F. W. Bird.

Mr. F. W. BIRD, a politician whose crotchets and whose vagaries have plagued the Republican Party of Massachusetts ever since it had an existence, is now, naturally, the most active leader of the scanty band of "Liberal" Republicans in the Bay State. He has undertaken to demolish HENRY WILSON in the Tribune, and in a recent letter to the Boston Post, to break the force of Mr. GARRISON'S powerful letter to Senator SUMNER, by disclosing the terrible and startling fact, which he seems to think entirely new to the public, that the great abolition leader was a disunionist before the rebellion began; and, therefore, according to Mr. BIRD, has no right "to read to CHARLES SUMNER or HORACE GREELEY lectures upon practical statesmanship." To prove that Mr. GARRISON was a disunionist, he cites from the Liberator various strongly-expressed passages written or spoken by Mr. GARRISON in 1854, 1856 and 1858, in which the Union is denounced, and the Constitution described as "a covenant with death and an agreement with hell."

We suppose no intelligent person, of mature years at least, needs to be told that Mr. GARRISON was for a long time in the habit of denouncing the Union and the Constitution, on the ground that they were pro-slavery; but it is equally notorious that when the slaveholders themselves attacked the Union, and trampled on the Constitution of which they had professed to be the special champions, Mr. GARRISON, like other patriotic citizens gave the warmest support to the cause of his assailed country, and from that day to this has never uttered a syllable of hostility to the Union or the Constitution. He was never, in fact, hostile to them from want of patriotism, but solely from an honest, though mistaken conviction, that slavery could not be got rid of as long as they existed.

Mr. BIRD, however, upbraids him with his theoretical disunionism of twenty-five years ago, overlooking and condoning Mr. GREELEY'S later willingness to let the South go at a time when disunion was a very practical question—and, finally, makes in his letter the following thrust at Garrisonian disunionists generally:

"The impartial historian, in inquiring for the causes of the slaveholders' rebellion, will be compelled to declare that no man and no set of men were more responsible for the war than GARRISON and his followers."

In the face of this violent attack upon Mr. GARRISON, what shall we say of the fact that this very Mr. BIRD was himself the President of a Disunion Convention which assembled at Worcester, Mass., in January, 1857, and in which GARRISON and WENDELL PHILLIPS were the leading orators? A few months later, that is to say in July, 1857, there appeared in the Boston Traveller, and, we presume, in other Boston papers, a circular beginning thus: "The State Disunion Convention, held at Worcester, Mass., January, 1857, [of which Mr. BIRD was President,] recommended a National Convention, based on the same principles, during the present year." This circular was signed by WENDELL PHILLIPS, WILLIAM LLOYD GARRISON, and—F. W. BIRD!

This circular was published July 24, and was dated July 8. Three days before that date, on July 5, Mr. BIRD addressed a letter, over his own signature, to Mr. GARRISON'S Liberator, in which he said: "Accustom the people to look at disunion, not as a raw-head-and-bloody-bones monster, but as a possible, probable, and, in the present tendency of things, a desirable result."

This, we think, will do for Mr. BIRD, so far as disunionism is concerned. But in our researches into his record, we find something additional to quote in reference to his recent venomous attack on HENRY WILSON as a Know-nothing. That attack was made in a communication in Thursday's Tribune, in which Mr. BIRD cites and condemns a letter written by Mr. WILSON in 1855. Mark the date! Two years later—that is to say in 1857—we find in the Tribune a letter from Mr. BIRD, over his signature, dated "East Walpole, Mass., June 27," in which, speaking of HENRY WILSON, he expresses his "entire conviction of his (WILSON'S) perfect sincerity and integrity," and adds, "the personal relations between Gen. WILSON and myself have been thoroughly cordial and confidential up to this day." In the same letter he again says: "The relations of personal and political intimacy between Major BURLINGAME and WILSON, more especially with the latter, have never been disturbed."

And yet, after this emphatic declaration of sympathy, personal and political, as late as 1857, Mr. BIRD coolly ventures to denounce Mr. WILSON for a letter published in 1855!

MINOR TOPICS.

"They (Messrs. DOUGLASS and CARPENTER) had better use their powerful influence at Washington to prevent the Government from attempting to give fifty thousand dollars or so to BLANTON DUNCAN for property of the said DUNCAN used by our troops during the war, while BLANTON aforesaid was serving, well or ill, with the Confederate Army. * * * The Government officers have called up an old claim of his, and propose to pay the full amount."—Tribune, of Saturday.

BLANTON DUNCAN says: "I never had a claim against the United States Government for a dollar, and the fifty-two thousand dollar-item is a lie cut out of whole cloth. If I had a claim, there would be no possibility of payment, as I was not considered loyal until October, 1866, when I was pardoned, and the indictments against me for treason in United States Courts were dismissed."—Telegram to Times of yesterday.

This a fair sample of the kind of slander dealt out by Mr. GREELEY'S organ day after day. A story is trumped up without a particle of foundation, and without the slightest attempt at verification it is sent on its rounds over the papers which in falsification are truly "Liberal." The slander is copied, commented on, expanded probably, but its contradiction or its disproof, however conclusive, is quietly ignored. And so the game proceeds in a manner eminently characteristic of the cause which these mendacious organs design to serve, and full of promise for the kind of performance to be expected of the men whom they want to foist upon the people.

Has the "organ" caused an examination of the case of Mr. SCHURZ, when Minister to Spain, to be made "at the Fifth Auditor's office?" If so, will it inform its readers of the result? It boasted of having demolished Judge SETTLE on the strength of certain figures relating to the salary he received as Minister to Peru. We showed that a precisely similar line of argument would rather more effectually demolish Senator SCHURZ'S claim to be considered a "Reformer;" but since then, the organ has given forth no sound on this particular key. We shall give the Professor a reasonable time to complete his researches "at the Fifth Auditor's office," but, in the event of his failure to find the record in question, we shall be obliged to come to his rescue. Without adopting the evasions and concealments used by the organ in treating of Judge SETTLE'S accounts, we may be able to show that Minister SCHURZ left a financial record very open to suspicion.

The Statistical Congress at St. Petersburg, to which our Government has sent representatives—Mr. BARNES, Ex-State Superintendent of Insurance being one—will be attended by upward of three hundred delegates. About the half of these are from Russia, the rest representing nearly every civilized people of both continents. The distinction is claimed for the meeting of being attended by a greater number of persons than any other scientific Congress which has hitherto taken place. A sum equal to about $5,000 currency has been voted by the Municipal Council of St. Petersburg for providing the foreign members with transportation and lodging free of charge, while four hotels have been engaged for the accommodation of the delegates. The proceedings at each session of the Congress will be described in a report, written in French.

Yesterday the World informed its readers that "Harper's Weekly publishes a caricature insulting the Germans and notifying them that steamers sail for Germany nearly every day, and then says there is no law in the country to compel them to stay." The fact that Harper's Weekly has published nothing of the sort, will probably not prevent the World and other Democratic papers from repeating this statement; but they are not likely to reap much benefit from the silly falsehood. Everybody sees the caricatures of Mr. NAST, and everybody knows that the one here referred to represented HERR SCHURZ as disgusted with American politics by his own confession, and Uncle Sam informing him that he need not stay in the country unless he wishes. The result to the Germans is in the insinuation of the World that the mighty SCHURZ is the only German in America worth mentioning.

No law but that of greed apparently governs the loading of the excursion boats in our harbor, and especially those which ply to Coney Island. Some of these which are old and rickety are shamefully overcrowded, and it is singular that no terrible loss of life has yet resulted from this cause. When it does happen, as it surely will sooner or later, it will be a dismal trifling with truth to call the occurrence an accident. Yet it will be so called, and after a farcical investigation things will go on very much as before. It seems within the bounds of possibility to limit the passengers of a steamer to its carrying capacity, but it never is attempted when required, and probably never will be until the day, which now seems to be distant, when human life will be guarded more jealously than property by the executive officers of the law.

We have no lack of hotels and restaurants which are first-class in their appointments and prices, but nobody ventures on the experiment of lodging and feeding humanity decently at a moderate rate. There are thousands in this city who cannot afford to pay exorbitant charges, who yet have some regard for the refinements of life, and being forced to live in restaurants are compelled to resort to places where all the surroundings are repulsive, while the victuals are of inferior quality and poorly cooked. This class would amply support a restaurant where the meals would be served in decent style at decent prices, and we wonder no one has attempted to accommodate them. Cleanliness costs little, yet its absence is the chief drawback to all our restaurants except those which a man of moderate income dares not enter. We are sure that a fortune awaits the daring innovator who will furnish more cleanliness and fewer odors from the kitchen in a restaurant of the kind which is termed second-class. If in addition he will act on the theory that a good cook costs little more, proportionately, than a poor one, he will find his gains from an increased custom greatly increased.

The Tribune says of Gov. HOFFMAN: "He has been a great favorite with his party, and is fully justified in the grateful reference to the honor it has bestowed upon him." As that party is also the party of the Tribune, it might perhaps inform the public for which of Mr. HOFFMAN'S services he has received the favor and the honor of his political associates. Was it for helping the Erie robbers and approving of the legislation which fastened the Tammany gang upon the tax-payers of New-York? Or was it for killing the bill which would have brought speedy justice upon TWEED, SWEENY, HALL & Co., or for employing the most disreputable trickery to defeat a needed installment of local Reform at the last moment of the legislative session? As the Tribune looks for the co-operation of HOFFMAN in the struggle for its candidate and his friends, perhaps it will enlighten the public as to whether it has changed the opinion expressed by it on the 17th of July, last year: "The bloodshed of the 12th stains the hands of the Governor, and cannot be washed out."

We are frequently informed by the officials of our street railroad companies that their business is an exceedingly poor one, and that, in fact, the running of street-cars is rather a benevolent enterprise than otherwise. In London, the same anxiety to conceal the profitable character of such undertakings does not appear to exist. The principal "tramways" companies, as they are called there, have held their half-yearly meetings recently, and we find, among others, that the North Metropolitan Company earned in gross, during the six months ending June 30, on 11¾ miles of road opened for traffic, the sum of £211,205, of which, after deducting £142,755 for working expenses, there remained £68,450 to divide among the shareholders. A dividend at the rate of ten per cent. per annum was declared, which disposed of £63,090 of the net earnings, and the balance was carried over to the reserve fund. As the most valuable connection of the line has yet to be completed, it is clear that horse-cars can be made to pay in London, whatever may be the difficulties of getting a return out of them in New-York.

Amusements—To-night's Promise.

"King Carrot" will be produced at the Grand Opera-House this evening. "The Octoroon" is to be represented at Wood's Museum. The San Francisco Minstrel Troupe will give their inaugural entertainment at the St. James Theatre. The performances at other houses are the same which solicited notice last week.

Michigan.

To the Editor of the New-York Times:

In relation to the atrocious falsehoods that appear in the New-York Tribune from time to time, from its special correspondent in this State, as to the hold the Greeley ticket has upon the hearts of the people, I wish to say a word. The muster-roll of former Republicans in this State who now support Greeley is less than 3,000, and growing less every day. This loss is made up by twice that number of young Republicans, who will cast their votes for the first time next November. Of the colored vote, 2,500 strong, who vote for President for the first time in Michigan, there are not twenty who support Greeley. There are more than 5,000, and perhaps 10,000, Democratic voters who will not vote for Greeley and Brown, but will support the straight Democratic ticket to be nominated at Louisville. Should no such nomination be made, one-half of them will vote for Grant and Wilson, and the rest will vote the Republican ticket or none.

The strength of the Liberal Republican Greeley movement in Michigan is to be tested by facts. There are many counties where a Greeley Republican is not to be found. In Wayne County, with 150,000 inhabitants, at two Mass County Conventions only twenty-two assembled. In Kalamazoo County, with 40,000 inhabitants, at a Mass Convention only seventeen appeared. In this county, Ingham, with 30,000 people, twenty-two were found at the Mass Convention held last week. In Clinton County, with 25,000 inhabitants, only fifteen attended the County Mass Convention. And it is the same everywhere.

Ninety per cent. of the population of Michigan is of New-England descent, either first or second generation, and as reliable in politics as Vermont or Massachusetts. With over 31,000 majority in 1868, and a Republican Government for eighteen years, set us down for 30,000 in November. Michigan men laugh at the Tribune lies and despise the writers.

MR. GEORGE WILLIAM CURTIS ON THE QUESTIONS OF THE DAY.

The Republican Party and Its Great Services to the Country—Why President Grant Should be Re-Elected—Reliance on the Democracy Fatal to Good Government and Reform.

Mr. George William Curtis, by special invitation, addressed the Republican citizens of the towns of Westfield and Ashfield, Mass., on the political issues of the day. From the Springfield Republican, we quote the following nearly full report of the eloquent and convincing speech delivered by him on these occasions:

MR. PRESIDENT AND FELLOW-CITIZENS: Amid all the music and shouting, the bitter misrepresentation, the fervid eloquence, the rhetoric, the argument and slander of the hour, we must not forget that we are engaged in our most serious political duty. We are providing for our Government for the next four years; and the precise situation which now presents itself this generation has not seen. In 1820, at the second election of James Monroe to the Presidency, the Federal Party disbanded, disorganized, presented no candidate, and disappeared. Mr. Monroe received every electoral vote but one. The passage, in the next year, of the Missouri compromise opened the slavery debate, which gradually absorbed every other issue, and became the dominant interest of our politics, until, forty years afterward, in 1860, the question was this only: shall slavery absolutely control the Government of the United States? There were two parties. The Democratic Party cried "yes;" the Republican Party said "no." Abraham Lincoln was elected; and slavery in the New World was stayed forever. In 1864, the issue was again simple. It was whether the Union should be saved to liberty, or whether the Government should surrender to slavery in arms. The Republican Party pronounced for Union and liberty; the Democratic Party cried for surrender. The result was Abraham Lincoln was re-elected, and amid the heavenly music of four millions of breaking chains, Gen. Lee surrendered the broken sword of slavery to Gen. Grant. In 1868, the issue was again simple. It was whether the Union saved by the war should be reconstructed upon the principles of liberty and justice that had prevailed in the war. The Democratic Party, led by the rebel element within its ranks, said again, "no;" the Republican Party said "yes." The result was that Gen. Grant entered the White House, saying, "Let us have peace."

THE SITUATION TODAY.

In 1872, the spectacle is extraordinary. The Republican Party, reaffirming its principles, declaring for that progress and reform which are implied in those principles, which logically belong to the constitution of that party, renominates the President, as it before renominated Lincoln. The Democratic Party suddenly turns its back upon its record, declaring that what in 1868 it avowed to be unconstitutional and revolutionary, will be now accepted. The Democratic Party, not disbanded, not disorganized like the Federal Party in 1820, but full of enthusiasm, full of hope, in convention adopts a Republican platform, a conscious Republican for its banner-bearer, and appeals for your votes on the ground that it will be more Republican in the administration of this Government than Republicans themselves. But, fellow-citizens, this is precisely the moment in which, each party making the same professions—for there is no difference between the platforms—this is the moment in which every honest citizen will ask himself the question, which of the two parties is the more likely to keep its word? I think, therefore, the duty which all of us owe ourselves and the country is first to ascertain what is the paramount necessity of the country at this moment, and then decide which of the two parties is best entitled to such confidence. In my judgment the great overpowering and absolute need of the country at this time, including in the details of administration all possible reform and progress, is that the government of the new Union which sprang from the war shall now and forever be administered in the full, living faith of the principles that prevailed in the war and that ended the Constitution. The people of this country have declared that every citizen of the United States, white or black, born where he may be, being what he may be, as a citizen of the United States shall have equal protection under the law. We demand that, wherever the sun shines upon our dominion, citizens shall be absolutely secure; in the everglades of Florida as well as among the hills of Massachusetts. We demand further that this shall be placed beyond all doubt. If any man, or any combination of men lay the slightest finger of injury upon the poorest and humblest of our citizens, he shall instantly, either in State or national law, find the majesty of the people saying to him, "As ye do to the least of these my little ones, ye do unto me." This is the issue of the campaign—the equality and protection of citizens. It takes precedence over all other issues because, without it, there is no reconciliation; because without it, there is no reform; because, without it, there is no progress. We are ending the first century of our national independence in vain, if we have not learned that, without this certainty of absolute equality of citizenship, there can be no peace, no reconciliation. Twelve years ago, fifteen years ago, how proud we were! No nation in the world could dare to rank with us. How splendid our statistics! What man, it was asked, in this country ever felt the weight of taxation of the Government? Our orators were never tired of celebrating the glories of our country. They defied the future. Who shall molest us or make us afraid? In an instant we were plunged in the fiery abyss of civil war, and after four years we came to the shore, burdened with a debt as if we had been a nation of ten centuries. The equality of rights gained at such a tremendous price is not to be secured by any formal acquiescence. It is not made sure by the letter of the law. The new provisions of the Constitution will not of themselves help liberty at the South, until the South can respect liberty as it does not respect it today.

BUT TWO PARTIES STILL.

We all remember the teachings of history. This is a campaign in which we are told to forget history, to remember nothing; or, in the slang of the day, the American citizen is told to shut his eyes and "go it blind." I am here to speak for the dead in their graves, who cannot speak for themselves. If by their death something has been gained, something must be secured. Now which of the two parties, both of which profess to respect the settlements of the war, both of which promise the amendments of the Constitution shall be enforced,—which is the one entitled to our confidence? A party is not a fungus. It is not the growth of a night. It is an association of men holding certain principles, functions and philosophies in common. It is an association which has certain tendencies, opinions and a certain spirit. Which of these two parties, judged by its tendencies, opinions and spirit, is the more likely to keep its word? I do not preach slavish subserviency to party. One man with God is a majority. I know as well as any Greeley man in the universe can tell me, that party success may be bought much too dearly. I know when an honest man's party deserts its principles, the honest man deserts the party. But I know, too, when there are two great organized parties, one or the other must carry the election. It is impossible for a few gentlemen on the eve of a Presidential election to form a new third party in the parlor at the Glenham Hotel; and if the Democratic Party comes to that room it takes possession of the room, and for its own purposes; not for any other. When the spider and the fly project an alliance, it makes little difference whether the fly walks into the parlor of the spider, or the spider walks into the parlor of the fly. It is an alliance of consumption. There can be but one party, and that is the party of the spider. Those men that went to Cincinnati, went as Republicans. Then followed the Democratic Party in convention, called according to its usages, following the forms of that party; and they took the Cincinnati platform and candidates, but they took them as Democrats—not as Republicans, not as members of a third party, but they took them as Democrats. A Georgia paper which I read last night was headed "National Democratic Ticket: For President, Horace Greeley." That is the party with which we have to deal. All the machinery and all the force—with some exceptions—that will be brought to bear for the election of Mr. Greeley will be of that party. Now, an Administration is necessarily of the spirit of the party which brings it into power. Gentlemen may say they are not Democrats—never were Democrats. They may say: "You do not call Horace Greeley a Democrat. He is a Republican of the Republicans. Are we doing wrong in supporting him?" They may say: "We mean only reform." But, as was said in England long ago, "the heads of parties, like the heads of serpents, are moved and governed by the tail." The head of the Democratic Party may have been fashioned in Cincinnati, but if you would know how the whole party must move, look at the tail that was fashioned in Baltimore. The spider has walked into the parlor of the fly, but if that little Liberal Republican fly should venture to buzz his small desires, there would be a sharp, decided answer: "Shoo fly, don't bother me." That alliance will be an ill-fated one for the fly.

WHICH PARTY CAN WE TRUST?

Now, which of these two parties, in your judgment, is the more likely to keep its word? You see, my fellow-citizens, I am going to rake in the ashes. I believe I cannot cast my vote wisely in 1872, without remembering how and why I cast my vote in 1868, in 1864, in 1860. When I speak of the Democratic Party, you will understand I am not speaking of individuals. Every Democrat has Republican friends whom he honors and respects; and every Republican has Democratic friends in whom he trusts. When I say the French people are a volatile people, I do not say Guizot is a harlequin. When I speak of the Democratic Party I speak of historical facts, not impeaching the motives or actions of individuals. The Democratic Party for the last generation had been the mere slave of slavery. To serve slavery the Democratic Party robbed the mails, trampled on the right of free speech and upon the right of petition; and when the Democratic Party in the South began to hint at secession and mutter rebellion, the great body of the Democratic Party espoused the doctrine of State sovereignty. Whatever was done in the South by the real leaders of the party had the full and hearty support of the party throughout the country. And so it was when Lincoln was elected and the rebellion was begun. We find the last Democratic President wringing his hands in impotent despair, while the tears ran from his eyes, and whimpering, "The Union had no right to dissolve, but, to dear! it had no right to help itself." The last Democratic Secretary of War sent material to any but loyal men. The last Democratic Secretary of the Navy left our coast without protection, and the last Democratic Secretary of the Treasury knocked the bottom out before he fled. During the four terrible, cruel years of the war—which was only a natural consequence and a natural growth of the teachings of the Democratic Party—during the four years of the war, by every means known to men, that party resisted the prosecution of the war. I am raking in the ashes; I do not forget it. It resisted every measure that was brought forward to save the Government, liberty and civilization upon this continent. It had no part in the glory of emancipation. Then came the struggle of reconstruction. Struggle—why? Because of the position of the Democracy. Every measure that was proposed in the interest of reconstruction, that was essential to carry out the principles of liberty and justice, was sturdily resisted by that party; and while that question was pending, the party hurried to its convention and declared that everything that had been done was unconstitutional, and sought to overturn all the war had accomplished. I am still raking in the ashes of the past.

THE DEMOCRATIC LEADERS.

But the people of the United States, the loyal majority, organized as the Republican Party, have not only succeeded in putting into the Reconstruction acts the principles which conquered in the war, but have so administered the Government that the name of the United States was never so respected and honored, the world over, as it is now. This being so, the Democratic Party sees it is so, and hurries to its convention at Baltimore with most suspicious haste, folds its arms, smooths its brow, mutters its tongue, and whispers as blandly as it can, "Well, we see that you've got the better of us; we cannot exactly help ourselves; hurrah for the darkey; now give us the Government!" It becomes every man in the United States to rake in the ashes to see if he can find any spark of a live coal that may be blown up again into a new conflagration. I ask you if you can trust the party. All these things are the history of twelve years. All these things have been accomplished within the life-time of every boy that hears me. The leaders of the party today are the same men who did all these things. I have shown you what the party has done; do you believe it wholly repentant? Are these the men to whom the guardianship of equal rights and the government of the new Union can be intrusted? Is the man who yesterday held that the black man was of an inferior race and his place that of a slave, the one to intrust with the care of the black man's liberty? Is the man who yesterday declared that the national faith should be violated, the one to make today the guardian of the nation's honor? Is the man who declared yesterday that all the war had done was unconstitutional, the man to intrust today with the enforcement of the Constitution? Would you have trusted a Tory of the Revolution with the Government which followed? But when I ask you these questions, some of you may reply by saying, "Yes, but we think Horace Greeley will make an excellent President." Well, now, if, when the first administration of the Union had been put into operation, Gen. Washington had been waited upon by the Tories of the Revolution, still fully organized, and just on the eve of the first election they had said to Washington: "We have decided we were in the wrong. We have decided we are just as good as the Whigs, and we wish you to be our candidate,"—I have read history in vain if Gen. Washington would not have said to those men: "Gentlemen, if these are your opinions why are you thus armed? If you are repentant why are you still organized? If you agree that the Whigs are right why do you not join the Whigs?" This, I believe, would have been Gen. Washington's response. But if I am wrong, if, instead he has accepted the nomination of those men, George Washington though he was, the sons of liberty would have defeated him, as the descendants of the sons of liberty will defeat Horace Greeley in November.

THE DEMOCRACY UNCHANGED.

You will ask me another question: Are parties eternal? Are we to always go on fighting? How are we ever to make any political progress if we refuse to take the hand of those we have sometimes opposed? Saint Paul repented, and why not the Democratic Party? If the whole Jewish people had suddenly declared that they also had received a great light, and had all avowed their conversion, and set up to be the original primitive Christians, I think had we lived in that day, we would have waited for some signs of conversion before giving them the hand of fellowship. Will any man tell me what are the signs of conversion in the Democratic Party? The last opportunity that was offered was in Washington at the last session of Congress. The Supplementary Civil Rights bill was introduced, and, in the debate upon that subject, the party spoke as one man. They took the same old Democratic ground, the same old spirit of hatred to the colored man. All the same old slavery virus came frothing out in the speeches of the best men in that party seventeen times. Monday after Monday they staved off and voted down the Civil Rights bill, which simply asserted the equal rights of all citizens. They voted against it two or three times after the Cincinnati Convention, and, with their lips still red with saying "No," hurried off to Baltimore and cried "equal rights to all men." [Mr. Curtis here quoted from the speeches of a number of Democrats, and from several Southern newspapers, to show that the spirit of the Democratic Party was the same that it ever had been. He then continued:] I can conceive of no reason why a man having the true interest of his country at heart should vote for that party except this—that, bad as the Democratic Party may be, the Republican is worse. Is that true? Is the Republican Party, which has done more to maintain free government than any other party in the world, so bad as that? You will agree with me that those who attack the Administration have always the advantage of position. It is easy to sketch a model administration without a blunder or a weakness. Tried by such a standard, any merely human administration will fail. But every honest man will try to be just. In the details of our Government, administered by 70,000 or 80,000 officers, scattered over a territory from the Lakes to the Gulf, there will be constantly facts occurring which are interpreted to the disadvantage of the Government; and not a fault or error can be committed by a Postmaster or Collector but we shall instantly be told that the entire administration is a huge fraud. On the other hand, they will tell us what they will do. Had they been in power then or that would not have taken place, and instead of we should have purity, honest and rapid reform. They will be as lavish in their promises as the maple is of red leaves in October. What are the probabilities that they will be kept? They wish to pass the sponge over what they have done, and only wish us to listen to what they say.

PRESIDENT GRANT'S ADMINISTRATION.

What is the record of this Administration? Taking the first great point which any government is bound to observe, has the Republican Party guarded the equal rights of the citizens? It is the very glory of the Administration that it has done so. It found four million slaves. It has made them men and women; it has united them in holy marriage; and they sit with us in our legislative halls. Doolittle and others talk of negro supremacy upheld by the bayonet. The negro has his vote; that is all his supremacy. How is it upheld by the bayonet? When it was found there was an organized terrorism at the South to trample the black man under foot, the Government simply kept its word. Frederick Douglass, who has known what slavery was, and what it has been to his race, heard those words of Doolittle, and cried with trumpet tongue to his fellows: "To the negro the Republican Party is the deck; all else is the sea. Stand loyal to Grant." Amen, amen, cried North Carolina, in the first furious onset of the campaign, standing steadfast as Republicans. After referring to the financial record, Mr. Curtis, in reply to the remark often made that Gen. Grant did not pay the debt, said that in the same sense he did not put down the rebellion. It was the Union Army that put down the rebellion, but Gen. Grant was its head. The prosperity of the country is owing to the confidence and trust of the people in the solidity of the Government. Mr. Curtis continued: It is not a great many years ago since a Lieutenant of the United States Army was stationed on the extreme frontier of Oregon. He had an observing mind—he had a thoughtful mind, and this he observed: Among "King George's men" the Indian was treated in a different way from the treatment he received from the "Boston men." If one of King George's men went away for a day among the Indians, he went unarmed and safely returned. If one of the "Boston men" went among the Indians, he never returned, or, if he did, it was with "no hair on the place where the hair ought to grow." The difference was, King George's man treated the Indian honestly; the Boston man cheated him. The Lieutenant is now the President of the United States, and his Indian policy is the result of his personal observations upon the frontier. Treat the Indian as a man, is the policy of the United States. Nearly 300,000 Indians are cared for by the Government. The Indian expenses have increased to seven millions. Gen. Walker tells why. It is because the Indians have been driven more and more from their hunting grounds. Therefore they raise their hand against the white race. But steadily the policy of the Government is having its effect.

THE CIVIL SERVICE.

Another cry is directed at what they call the abuses in the civil service of the country. But is it the Democratic Party to which we are to look for improvement in this particular? I am free to confess, after a great deal of study and investigation, of all persons in this country who are known as bitterly opposed to reform in the civil service, none are more helplessly so than leading gentlemen who nominated Horace Greeley at Cincinnati. The present system came in with Gen. Jackson, who regarded all the offices as the plunder of the dominant party. When Gen. Grant was elected, he desired to effect a reform in this service; but when you reflect upon the enormous extent and the number of offices to be filled, you will see at once a personal acquaintance amounts to nothing, and the President must depend upon the representations of Senators and Representatives. A great many of the offices are of no importance. Out of 32,000 Post-offices 29,000 pay less than $100 a year. But they have become a sort of currency by which members of Congress pay their political debts. In all these appointments the Senate is responsible, as it confirms them; and it has also usurped the proper functions of the President by determining that no nomination shall be confirmed except it is favored by the Administration Senator from the State in which it is made. I have begged of a Senator to support a certain nomination, and he has replied that he should like to gratify me, but it would all depend on what the Senator from that State should say. The office of a Judge was vacant and the Senator from that State wanted a man appointed whom the President knew and believed to be unfit for the office. He nominated man after man, each being rejected—unquestionably because they were not acceptable to the Senator from that State; and the office remained vacant for more than a year. I have come to the conclusion that no thorough reform is possible without the cooperation of Congress, or until public opinion asks of every man nominated for Congress, "Are you in favor of a thorough reform?" and gets from him a categorical answer. The President is guided strictly according to the rules he has adopted, but no man knows the difficulties in the way. This principle is, however, adhered to that all positions shall be filled by ascertained fitness and not merely in consequence of political influence; and it is to my knowledge that the President has not removed any person from office solely on account of political considerations.

"RECONCILIATION."

One word further. We are told that this is a campaign of reconciliation, that we want peace and therefore we want a change in party. "Let us clasp hands over the bloody chasm," says Mr. Greeley. Very well, answer we. Who in this country has refused to clasp hands? Is it these men in the Southern States who oppose the new order of things? Is it those in the Northern States who morally supported them, or those men who have said equality for all shall be maintained at all hazards? Let us clasp hands! Yes, Mr. Greeley, we have sought to clasp hands from the moment of Lee's surrender. "I am against the policy of hate," says Senator Sumner. Fellow-citizens, the name of your great Senator, the name of Charles Sumner, shall never be mentioned by me except with affection, gratitude and respect. I do not forget—though for the first time I have come to that moment which I believed never would come to me in this life—when I, a Republican, stand before you, Republicans, and, above all, Massachusetts Republicans, and have to speak to you of what Senator Sumner has said, in infinite sorrow. But I do not forget, nothing can blot from my mind the great past of your great Senator. I remember his illustrious services. I remember how for twenty years, during the very tempest of our politics culminating in the civil war, in constantly peril of his life he stood erect, spotless in character, unswerving in his principles. I remember how, like the granite cliff, Charles Sumner opposed himself to the oceans of hate, to the oceans of slander, to the oceans of ridicule that came rolling in upon him, and were swept back by him into the impotent froth and foam. I remember those great services—and no departure of his from what seems to me the true faith, makes me forget it,—yet when Charles Sumner says I am against the policy of the Republican Party, I remember if any man has shaped the policy of the Republican Party it is Senator Sumner. If that policy be as he implies in those words, the policy of hate, he denounces his own work. He condemns himself. He it was down to the last days of Congress who urged and who pressed the passage of the Civil Rights bill. He it was who in the most convincing and elaborate speech of the session asserted how much remained to be done. He it is, who in his letter to the colored men declares that the peace of the colored man is still in great danger, and he it is who declares that he will now trust all the great purposes and objects of his life in the hands of his most implacable enemies.

Fellow-citizens, never was a great victor in a great war marching in robes so absolutely spotless of injustice as the robes of the American people, organized into the Republican Party. When the war ended, the state of things at the South was very sad. Greeley has described the Southern mortification and rage. I thought he used strong language from the Republican construction acts the principles which conquered in the war, but have so administered the Government that the name of the United States was never so respected and honored, the world over, as it is now. This being so, the Democratic Party sees it so, and hurries to its convention at Baltimore with most suspicious haste, folds its arms, smooths its brow, mutters its tongue, and whispers as blandly as it can, "Well, we see that you've got the better of us; we cannot exactly help ourselves; hurrah for the darkey; now give us the Government!" It becomes every man in the United States to rake in the ashes to see if he can find any spark of a live coal that may be blown up again into a new conflagration. I ask you if you can trust the party. All these things are the history of twelve years. All these things have been accomplished within the life-time of every boy that hears me. The leaders of the party today are the same men who did all these things. I have shown you what the party has done; do you believe it wholly repentant? Are these the men to whom the guardianship of equal rights and the government of the new Union can be intrusted? Is the man who yesterday held that the black man was of an inferior race and his place that of a slave, the one to intrust with the care of the black man's liberty? Is the man who yesterday declared that the national faith should be violated, the one to make today the guardian of the nation's honor? Is the man who declared yesterday that all the war had done was unconstitutional, the man to intrust today with the enforcement of the Constitution? Would you have trusted a Tory of the Revolution with the Government which followed? But when I ask you these questions, some of you may reply by saying, "Yes, but we think Horace Greeley will make an excellent President." Well, now, if, when the first administration of the Union had been put into operation, Gen. Washington had been waited upon by the Tories of the Revolution, still fully organized, and just on the eve of the first election they had said to Washington: "We have decided we were in the wrong. We have decided we are just as good as the Whigs, and we wish you to be our candidate,"—I have read history in vain if Gen. Washington would not have said to those men: "Gentlemen, if these are your opinions why are you thus armed? If you are repentant why are you still organized? If you agree that the Whigs are right why do you not join the Whigs?" This, I believe, would have been Gen. Washington's response. But if I am wrong, if, instead he has accepted the nomination of those men, George Washington though he was, the sons of liberty would have defeated him, as the descendants of the sons of liberty will defeat Horace Greeley in November.

THE DEMOCRACY UNCHANGED.

You will ask me another question: Are parties eternal? Are we to always go on fighting? How are we ever to make any political progress if we refuse to take the hand of those we have sometimes opposed? Saint Paul repented, and why not the Democratic Party? If the whole Jewish people had suddenly declared that they also had received a great light, and had all avowed their conversion, and set up to be the original primitive Christians, I think had we lived in that day, we would have waited for some signs of conversion before giving them the hand of fellowship. Will any man tell me what are the signs of conversion in the Democratic Party? The last opportunity that was offered was in Washington at the last session of Congress. The Supplementary Civil Rights bill was introduced, and, in the debate upon that subject, the party spoke as one man. They took the same old Democratic ground, the same old spirit of hatred to the colored man. All the same old slavery virus came frothing out in the speeches of the best men in that party seventeen times. Monday after Monday they staved off and voted down the Civil Rights bill, which simply asserted the equal rights of all citizens. They voted against it two or three times after the Cincinnati Convention, and, with their lips still red with saying "No," hurried off to Baltimore and cried "equal rights to all men." [Mr. Curtis here quoted from the speeches of a number of Democrats, and from several Southern newspapers, to show that the spirit of the Democratic Party was the same that it ever had been. He then continued:] I can conceive of no reason why a man having the true interest of his country at heart should vote for that party except this—that, bad as the Democratic Party may be, the Republican is worse. Is that true? Is the Republican Party, which has done more to maintain free government than any other party in the world, so bad as that? You will agree with me that those who attack the Administration have always the advantage of position. It is easy to sketch a model administration without a blunder or a weakness. Tried by such a standard, any merely human administration will fail. But every honest man will try to be just. In the details of our Government, administered by 70,000 or 80,000 officers, scattered over a territory from the Lakes to the Gulf, there will be constantly facts occurring which are interpreted to the disadvantage of the Government; and not a fault or error can be committed by a Postmaster or Collector but we shall instantly be told that the entire administration is a huge fraud. On the other hand, they will tell us what they will do. Had they been in power then or that would not have taken place, and instead of we should have purity, honest and rapid reform. They will be as lavish in their promises as the maple is of red leaves in October. What are the probabilities that they will be kept? They wish to pass the sponge over what they have done, and only wish us to listen to what they say.

PRESIDENT GRANT'S ADMINISTRATION.

What is the record of this Administration? Taking the first great point which any government is bound to observe, has the Republican Party guarded the equal rights of the citizens? It is the very glory of the Administration that it has done so. It found four million slaves. It has made them men and women; it has united them in holy marriage; and they sit with us in our legislative halls. Doolittle and others talk of negro supremacy upheld by the bayonet. The negro has his vote; that is all his supremacy. How is it upheld by the bayonet? When it was found there was an organized terrorism at the South to trample the black man under foot, the Government simply kept its word. Frederick Douglass, who has known what slavery was, and what it has been to his race, heard those words of Doolittle, and cried with trumpet tongue to his fellows: "To the negro the Republican Party is the deck; all else is the sea. Stand loyal to Grant." Amen, amen, cried North Carolina, in the first furious onset of the campaign, standing steadfast as Republicans. After referring to the financial record, Mr. Curtis, in reply to the remark often made that Gen. Grant did not pay the debt, said that in the same sense he did not put down the rebellion. It was the Union Army that put down the rebellion, but Gen. Grant was its head. The prosperity of the country is owing to the confidence and trust of the people in the solidity of the Government. Mr. Curtis continued: It is not a great many years ago since a Lieutenant of the United States Army was stationed on the extreme frontier of Oregon. He had an observing mind—he had a thoughtful mind, and this he observed: Among "King George's men" the Indian was treated in a different way from the treatment he received from the "Boston men." If one of King George's men went away for a day among the Indians, he went unarmed and safely returned. If one of the "Boston men" went among the Indians, he never returned, or, if he did, it was with "no hair on the place where the hair ought to grow." The difference was, King George's man treated the Indian honestly; the Boston man cheated him. The Lieutenant is now the President of the United States, and his Indian policy is the result of his personal observations upon the frontier. Treat the Indian as a man, is the policy of the United States. Nearly 300,000 Indians are cared for by the Government. The Indian expenses have increased to seven millions. Gen. Walker tells why. It is because the Indians have been driven more and more from their hunting grounds. Therefore they raise their hand against the white race. But steadily the policy of the Government is having its effect.

THE CIVIL SERVICE.

Another cry is directed at what they call the abuses in the civil service of the country. But is it the Democratic Party to which we are to look for improvement in this particular? I am free to confess, after a great deal of study and investigation, of all persons in this country who are known as bitterly opposed to reform in the civil service, none are more helplessly so than leading gentlemen who nominated Horace Greeley at Cincinnati. The present system came in with Gen. Jackson, who regarded all the offices as the plunder of the dominant party. When Gen. Grant was elected, he desired to effect a reform in this service; but when you reflect upon the enormous extent and the number of offices to be filled, you will see at once a personal acquaintance amounts to nothing, and the President must depend upon the representations of Senators and Representatives. A great many DIAMONDS.

The New-Mexico and Arizona Excitement—Opinions of an Old Californian.

From Our Own Correspondent.

GRASS VALLEY, Tuesday, Aug. 13, 1872.

Twenty-three years ago an immense emigration was pouring into California. By land and sea, across the desert plains, around Cape Horn, by the Isthmus of Darien, even from the Oriental nations of the Eastern World, thousands and tens of thousands of hungry gold-seekers rushed to the new Eldorado, braving the perils of a hither to almost unknown journey, to seek their fortunes, and in hundreds of cases to lay down their lives from hunger, thirst and untold suffering in search of what to the masses proved an ignis fatuus. The burden of their song was:

"O, Susanna, don't you cry for me,
I'm going to California,
With my wash-bowl on my knee."

Excitement in search of gain is the great characteristic of the universal Yankee, and as some diseases are catching, other nations sometimes require the use of a little brimstone, or at least bitter experience, to cool their fevered blood and reduce the system to a normal state. And now that the gold fever has had its run, gradually resolving itself into something like an industrial pursuit, becoming thereby comparatively monotonous, some new excitement is needed to draw the crowd, to gull the thousands and fill the pockets of greedy speculators.

In consequence of this a diamond fever is in embryo, and the great field is opened in Arizona, where diamonds, rubies, sapphires, amethysts, (how pretty they sound and how glibly they run off the tongue,) exist in quantities which would shame Aladdin's enchanted garden and throw the author of the Arabian Nights into a paralysis for his commonplace gems. Why, the richest, the most dazzling gems are gathered there by the pint, quart, and (by and by) by the bushel. See Harpending's, Roberts', Minor's, Fox's and McClellan's reports. Already the fever begins to work, the gulls are swallowing the dose, the stock speculators are rubbing their hands in glee, and the entrapped birds will sing, with a slight alteration—

"O, Susanna, guess you'll cry for me
When I'm starved in Arizona
With my wash-bowl on my knee."

That diamonds are found in Arizona and New-Mexico, I do not doubt, but that they exist in such quantities as these speculators represent, I look upon as only another Gold Lake humbug. Could they be found as plentiful as these "original" discoverers represent, they would be comparatively valueless, and become a drug upon the market. In the distribution of the precious metals and rare gems in the earth, it is found that Providence has so arranged these things that they are to be obtained only in comparatively small quantities, and with infinite labor, and it is their scarcity that gives them their great value. Make gold as plenty as galena, and it would possess no greater value. Make lead as scarce and difficult to obtain as gold, and it would be worth as much. Make diamonds as plenty as quartz crystals, their value would be about the same; and if diamonds can be gathered by the bushel in Arizona, even the great Kohinoor would be worth about as much as the colored glass so highly prized by the terrible Apaches.

"First catch your hare before you skin him." When you get your diamond you must find a purchaser, and when you get a quart or two you can't tell their value till you offer them for sale. If you get gold you can send it to the Mint, have it coined, and then you have your circulating medium in hand. I observe among the diamond operators the name of Gen. McClellan. My word for it he will make his money in the sale of stock, not in digging the diamond fields. He may win another Antietam in the stock market, but he will not follow up his victory by gathering the gems by actual conquest in Arizona. You will observe the fact of these diamond speculators in associating prominent names in these stock operations. It is a gilded bait for simple gudgeons. Arizona is comparatively unknown. It is a land of waterless desert, of bleak mountains and deep cañons. Here and there are beautiful valleys, but they are the exception. In some parts there is arable land, but to reach the so-called diamond fields, wide tracts of arid deserts are to be crossed, where hundreds have perished from thirst, where the thermometer rises to 120° in the shade, if a shade can be found, and where the warlike, bold, cruel and untamed Apache holds possession of his mountain fastnesses, and to which the experience of early emigrants to California would be but a play-spell. The Sacramento Union truly says: "As we have said in a former article, there is a great deal of misery in store for those who go hunting for the North American diamond fields without more definite knowledge of its locality." Arizona possesses valuable mines of gold and silver. This diamond fever may find its ultimate compensation in having its available territory settled by a hardy population, its mines developed, and its ungovernable and treacherous Indian hordes wiped out, but this will be a work of years, and all holders of diamond stock will probably have to wait till a second generation arises before they will realize upon their investments. And now a word in your ear—but don't mention it for the world: Let's you and I stick to our gold and silver mines at home, which we know will pay, with proper management, and let those who want to be gulled with fine stories and big names go and fight the Apache and perish on the arid deserts and waterless and treeless wastes of Arizona in their search for glittering stones, which have a doubtful value, after all. Why, I would rather have a good bona fide soap mine than a mile of diamond field, for then I should have something of practical and necessary use—something tangible. A good oil-well in Pennsylvania will pay better. For more than twenty years I have lived among the excitements of discovery. In every instance, there was a sort of Crœsus whirlwind attending every one. Everybody was to grow rich; everybody make their pile, and live the rest of their days in ease and affluence. Thousands more, caught up by the blast, whirled hundreds of miles away, with high hopes till the fury of the storm was spent, when it was found that a few, very few, had found good diggings; the masses fell to the earth impoverished in pocket, wretched in mind, and, one might suppose, wise in experience. But like the gambler who trusts to luck in getting his money back in trying the game again, many follow each new excitement, hoping to regain by a lucky strike that which they have so hardly lost. And so will it be with these diamond hunters. Months and perhaps years of struggling and suffering, if they live, only to be disappointed in the end. It is the stock operators who make the money, not the laborer, in the end. Better invest your money in known and tried fields rather than in Arizona diamond fields. My dear reader, I give you this advice gratis. I make no charge, and you may cut this out and carry it in your pocket without costing a cent, if you please. When you feel the diamond-itch, put this under your pillow and sleep on it. You will be cured in the morning. If the disease is too deeply seated even for calm advice, why then God help you—you are beyond the reach of my medicine. Diamonds rest en pace, (or paste.)

I don't want to bore your readers with the financial condition of California, but I saw a statement made in the Sacramento Bee about the condition of the San Francisco savings banks, which ought to open the eyes of depositors at least. It says: "The savings banks of San Francisco owe their depositors over forty millions of dollars, and have on hand only $1,580,000 to pay them with. It is doubtful if there is coin enough in the State to pay off the depositors." From all the sources of information I can get, there is much truth in the statement. Indeed, I think their liability is even greater. Now, what will be the result in the event of a financial crisis?

Their securities (real estate in and around the city) would be thrown upon the market, sales forced beyond the capacity of the coin deposits in the State, down go securities, banks, and all, and the devil to pay generally; ruin will spread the result all over the State. Is not this a strong argument in favor of adopting the national currency? I don't see what will save us in the end but the greenback system, and the sooner it is adopted in California the better. There is gold enough in our mountains to save San Francisco, and the State, and, with the faith of the Government pledged in a sound currency in general use, we can get it out.

"BISMARCK'S PEN."

The Life and Death of Dr. Abeken.

The Pall Mall Gazette says: "In Dr. Abeken, who died at Berlin on the 8th inst., Germany has lost one of its most useful and, at the same time, most high-minded and honorable public men. Dr. Abeken was of late chiefly known as "Bismarck's pen," but he was far more than that. His life would form a most instructive commentary on the history of Germany since 1830. He began life as a clergyman, and many English friends will remember him still as such at Rome, in the house of the Prussian Ambassador, Bunsen, whose devoted friend he remained through life. He was with Bunsen in England, at the time of the foundation of the Jerusalem Bishopric, and he published then several most learned essays in English on the ecclesiastical and political questions involved in this first attempt at a common action of the English and the Continental Churches. He afterward entered the Foreign Office at Berlin, and passed through the bright days of Frankfort and the dark days of Olmütz, always an independent observer, but at the same time a most trustworthy servant of the Ministers who were successively called to the helm during those stormy times. When Bismarck had once discovered his sterling qualities, he never again parted with him. During the whole of the late war Dr. Abeken was always either with Bismarck or with the Emperor. It was he who sent the famous Benedetti telegram from Ems, it was he who sent the last telegram to Versailles. He was never intended to act a first part, and it seemed to be his pride to work for others. His attachments were strong, and became sometimes a kind of hero-worship. There was something almost feminine in his devotion to his friends, in his utter forgetfulness of self, in his faith in characters which he had once learned to respect. He believed in a Divine government of the world, and did not believe in successes which are bought at the expense of principle. The Emperor of Germany will lose in him a faithful servant, Prince Bismarck a trusty friend, Germany a true patriot, and England, too, a sincere admirer and well-wisher. He knew both the strong and the weak points of the English character, but both in his personal intercourse with some of the most eminent statesmen of the time and in his close study of contemporaneous events he had seen too much of the bright and pure side of public life in England to allow himself to be carried away by the current of public opinion in Germany, when for a time professed to depreciate everything English. It was one of his opinions that the peace of the world could never be secure unless the German and English nations joined hands for the defense of the highest interests of mankind."

FOREIGN NOTES.

The harvest in Russia has turned out much better than was expected. The yield of corn in the Governments of Cherson, Saratoff, Kazan, Toula, Tchernigoff, Kuban, Perm and some parts of the Kingdom of Poland was quite up to the average; in Bessarabia it was pretty good, and it was unsatisfactory only in the Governments of Ekaterinoslav, Volynia, Olonetz and the Don. The tobacco harvest is very good, and there is abundance of fruit.

The Paris papers mention that on Aug. 13 a serious explosion occurred in the new offices of the Ministry of Finance, opposite the Hotel du Louvre. Four messengers of the department in which the scrip of the new loan is being stamped, were severely burnt, three of them now lying in a critical state. The material damage was not great, although several boxes of important papers were destroyed. The disaster was caused by an escape of gas, which had been perceived by the clerks on the previous evening, but no steps appear to have been taken to remedy it.

The London Daily News of Aug. 14 prints the following telegram: "Cardinal Antonelli has had a violent discussion with the Pope. The Cardinal declared that he could not continue to hold office if his Holiness persevered in his hostile policy toward the Italian Government. He, moreover, declared that unless the Papacy came to terms with the Italian Government, the Church must suffer even more severely than she has already suffered. Cardinal Antonelli then repeated the opinions which had been expressed to him by various diplomatists, and said that the policy of Pius XI. made his position equivocal, because he could not defend what he always disapproved. Cardinal Antonelli has, it is said, requested the clerical journals to abstain from publishing the Pope's speeches."

The Eastern Budget says: "Russia is preparing a new expedition against Khiva. The Government of St. Petersburg having been dissatisfied with the independent aims assumed by the Khan of Khiva, and some months ago it sent him an ultimatum demanding a number of concessions which would practically reduce Khiva to the position of a dependency of Russia. The Khan received the messenger with Oriental politeness, heaping all sorts of honors upon him, and giving him two Russian prisoners, one of whom was a Colonel; but he paid no attention whatever to the terms of the ultimatum. The Government has accordingly directed the commandant of the Caucasus to reconnoitre the roads leading to Khiva, and provide provisions and transport for a corps d'armée to be sent into that country."

The Soir newspaper notices a singular branch of industry in vogue in the Quartier de la Villette, at Paris. It is that of a body of men who devote themselves to the rescue of dead dogs and old corks from the river or the canals near the city. The prices current for dead dogs, when their quality has not become deteriorated by a too long stay in the water, is from seven-pence to eight-pence. The skin is worth five or six cents, the fat sells at about ten cents a pound, and the bones represent an additional five or ten centimes, according to weight. Old corks are considerably less productive. They entail washing, and sometimes recutting before they are presentable, and then they only bring a few sous per hundred. But the two businesses go together, and the Soir suggests that, when dead dogs fail, living dogs will, if carefully selected, bring just as much money.

The Paris papers publish the following as the text of the invitation issued by the Grand Council of the International Association to its adherents to attend the General Congress which is to be held at The Hague, on the 2d of September: "Citizens—The Grand Council of the International Association sitting in London, having resolved, in consequence of events which have recently occurred in France, to introduce great modifications into the statutes of the Association, has determined to invite all the adherents to the great principle to meet in a General Conference at The Hague. You are, therefore, invited to that meeting, where the citizen Karl Marx will read a report upon the various labors of the French, German, English and Russian sections.

REVIEW OF THE PAST WEEK'S BUSINESS.

The most interesting sale of real property that was effected during the past week, ending Saturday, Aug. 17, was that of the Stadt Theatre property, Nos. 45 and 47 Bowery, which was sold by order of the Supreme Court, in foreclosure, on Wednesday last, for the sum of $122,000. The other transactions which have been effected have not been sufficient in number or amount to indicate a return of activity to the market.

Some few sales of west side and Boulevard lots have been reported, but beyond that which has been sold at the usual Supreme Court sales no real property has been offered at public auction. The City realty sold at the Exchange was in amount as follows: By Joseph McGuire, $122,000; by B. P. Fairchild, $10,000; by A. J. Bleecker, Son & Co., $13,000; total, $145,000, against the sum of $113,002 for the week previous. No auction sales of suburban property were held on any day of past week.

The auction sales proposed for the present week are not very numerous, and are principally of a legal character.

A comfortable house located in the suburbs of New-York, within easy riding distance of the City, is what a large number of persons are frequently seeking for. To such as are in search of healthy and pleasant location, that section of land known by the name of Richmond Hill, and which is located on Long Island, about seven miles distant from the Roosevelt-street Ferry, on the line of the South-side Railroad, is a healthy section of country, has abundance of pure spring water, the grade of the land is high, and commands a beautiful and extensive view of the ocean off Rockaway. The streets and avenues are handsomely laid out, and ornamented with trees and parks. The sidewalks are paved with Macadamized pavements, the land thoroughly drained, and the improvement in house property are numerous and of a very picturesque, elegant and comfortable character. The whole tract contains over 280 acres, which is restricted against nuisances. There are both churches, public schools and stores for the accommodation of residents. Take a trip out and examine the property.

THE AMERICAN BRIDGE COMPANY, OF CHICAGO, ILL.

(ORGANIZED AUG. 1, 1870.)

AUTHORIZED CAPITAL STOCK, $1,000,000

The whole amount of the authorized Capital Stock of this Company not having been issued, the balance thereof will be issued to subscribers at par, payments for same to be made in four installments of 25 per cent. each, viz.:

25 PER CENT. JULY 15, 1872.
25 PER CENT. AUG. 1, 1872.
25 PER CENT. SEPT. 1, 1872.
25 PER CENT. OCT. 1, 1872.

The Subscription Books now open at the office of the undersigned will be closed as soon as the new stock is fully subscribed. All past-due installments must be paid with interest at time of subscription.

The total amount of stock issued at this time is $614,700, and on this basis the Company shows a present surplus of $136,280 97, and is now doing a flourishing business. One thousand men are constantly employed in their extensive works, and they now have on hand orders for various railroads in the United States, among which may be mentioned the

CHICAGO, R. I. & PACIFIC,
CHICAGO & NORTH-WESTERN,
MICHIGAN CENTRAL,
MISSOURI PACIFIC,
ATLANTIC & PACIFIC, &c.

and the Company is now offered work to the amount of over $6,000,000, including some of the largest bridges ever built in this country; to accept of which, and further business, necessitates a larger working capital, as immense amounts of material have to be kept constantly on hand, and the Company are frequently obliged to receive, in part payment for their work, railroad and other bonds, which are perfectly good securities, but not always immediately marketable.

A point of incidental but great importance to these seeking security is the fact that the Company own thirty acres of land in Chicago, which leading real estate dealers say will be worth, in six years, at least $1,000,000 an amount equal to the whole proposed capital.

The career of the American Bridge Company, though brief, has already fully demonstrated the profitableness of the enterprise. The Company has constructed since its organization, and up to the 31st of December, 1871, a total of 38,127 feet of bridges, 18 turning tables, and 16 iron roofs, and pneumatic and screw pile substructures, costing $3,400,000, and have facilities for the construction of pneumatic piles assuming that any company in the country, and a capacity for the construction of at least 150 feet of bridges for every working day in the year.

The Iron Railroad and Highway Bridge at Leavenworth, of the spans of 240 feet each, and the Union Pacific Bridge across the Missouri River, of eleven spans of 250 feet each, were constructed by this Company.

The net profit arising from this business, as shown by the books of the Company up to the 31st of March, 1872, was the sum of $373,482 14, or at the rate of $224,089 28 per annum, being over 50 per cent. upon the capital now issued and outstanding. With the proposed new structures, machinery, &c., the Company will have much greater capacity, and the proceeds of the increased issue of stock will enable them to buy materials for cash, thereby making a saving of four $50,000 to $75,000 per year.

The Company can undoubtedly, on above basis, make dividends of from 20 to 25 per cent. per annum on the full amount of capital, $1,000,000, with a fair prospect of considerable increase.

The undersigned are prepared to give to those inquiring, the fullest details and entire satisfaction regarding the reliability of the Company's statements, and the unquestioned integrity and ability of its officers.

We confidently commend to capitalists the above, as an investment worthy their attention.

EXTENSION RAILWAY

First Mortgage 7 Per Cent. Convertible

GOLD BONDS,

AT 90 AND INTEREST,

Issued by the Indianapolis, Bloomington and Western Railway to aid in building its EXTENSION line West, in a direct line from Champaign (185 miles) to the Mississippi River at Keokuk, and a branch from White Heath (39 miles) to Decatur, all in the State of Illinois. The bonds are secured by a first and only mortgage on the EXTENSION, now being rapidly constructed in the most thorough manner by able and experienced contractors who represent a capital of several millions of dollars, which insures the last rail being laid at an early date. About 60 miles are already finished and 120 miles graded; the whole line, 217 miles, will be completed early in 1873. We have been connected and entirely familiar with the I., B. & W. Railway from its early organization. It was completed in the Autumn of 1870, and has developed rapidly into a SUCCESSFUL AND WEALTHY CORPORATION, having a large revenue from its largely increasing business. With the EXTENSION it will be one corporation, with 420 miles of road, located in a commanding position in the heart of the best portion of the country. The counties on the line of the EXTENSION in 1870 had a population of 242,330; valuation of real and personal estate, $181,000,000; bushels of grain raised, 27,000,000; value of farm products, $25,570,000, and live stock, $18,349,000; to which may safely be added 15 per cent. to represent the present population and value. THE COUNTIES ON THE OLD LINE AND THE EXTENSION TOGETHER CONTAIN A POPULATION OF NEARLY THREE-QUARTERS OF A MILLION, AND A PROPERTY VALUATION EXCEEDING $400,000,000.

From these statistics it will be readily seen that the EXTENSION will have a Local Business that will make it a complete success. In addition to this it will have the entire Through Traffic of the Missouri, Iowa, and Nebraska Road, connecting with it on the Mississippi River, and extending West to the Missouri, 300 miles, where it connects with the Midland Pacific in Nebraska. These two corporations, and also the Peoria and Rock Island (91 miles,) and the Davenport and St. Paul (300 miles,) although separate corporations, ARE CONTROLLED IN THE INTEREST OF THE INDIANAPOLIS, BLOOMINGTON AND WESTERN RAILWAY, and, practically, will be a united line of more than 1,900 miles, the through business of which will pass over the I., B. & W. This is an East and West trunk route and has no parallel competing line. The Eastern connections at Indianapolis are the Pennsylvania Central, Baltimore and Ohio, Bellefontaine, Lake Shore, and New-York Central, and other roads centering at this point. From the Sea-board to the West and North-west distances are materially reduced via this system of roads; so much so that it cannot fail to be the popular line for travel and business. Liberal subscriptions to the stock were made by towns and counties on the line of the EXTENSION, and the remainder has been taken by experienced railroad men and Eastern capitalists.

These facts cannot fail to make the bonds, which will be issued only on completed road, take high rank among the best railway securities.

The bonds are $1,000 each, convertible into stock at par, at the option of the holder, and may be registered free of charge.

Coupons, payable January and July 1, free of tax. The bonds may now be had from banks and bankers throughout the country.

We offer them at present at 90 and interest, and recommend them strongly to our friends and investors as one of the safest and most desirable securities on the market.

Bonds delivered free of express charges. Maps, pamphlets and circulars furnished on application.

THE CHICAGO AND CANADA SOUTHERN

First Mortgage Sinking Fund 30 Years

SEVEN PER CENT. GOLD BONDS

Interest Payable April and October at the Union Trust Company, AT 90 AND ACCRUED INTEREST.

This road is the Western link in the new AIR LINE from BUFFALO to CHICAGO and runs from the Detroit River to Chicago in nearly a straight line.

The road is a part of the same line as the Canada Southern and is being built by the same men, viz.: Milton Courtright, John F. Tracy, David Dows, Wm. L. Scott, Henry Farnam, R. A. Forsyth, Jno. M. Burke, M. L. Sykes, Jr., all Directors either in the Chicago and North-west or the Chicago, Rock Island and Pacific; George Opdyke, of the Midland Road; Sidney Dillon, Daniel Drew, John Ross, David Stewart, Samuel J. Tilden, Kenyon Cox, and other prominent railroad men.

The Road, like the Canada Southern, will have steel rails (60 pounds to the yard) throughout; is practically straight and level; much shorter, and can be run with greater speed and safety than any other road connecting with Buffalo and Chicago.

Twenty-five miles are finished and running; seventy-five miles more are so far advanced as to be finished by Jan. 1; and the entire road will be completed during the ensuing year. Steel rails and ties for one-half the entire road have already been purchased.

The builders of the road control enough of its Chicago feeders to obtain for it a profitable business from the start, having projected the line to accommodate existing business, and having seen the necessity for another trunk line between Chicago and the Atlantic sea-board, located expressly with the view of obtaining the cheapest transportation practicable.

The branch lines will make the shortest connections between Chicago and Toledo, and Chicago and Detroit, as well as between all these points and Buffalo.

The Canada Southern Bonds, in every particular like these, were eagerly taken, the last of them several weeks ago, by the best class of investors, and were on the market a shorter time than any other railroad loan of like amount for years past.

The proceeds of these bonds will complete the entire line, and we recommend them with the same confidence as we did the Canada Southern, and regard them as in every way a choice security.

THE POOR CHILDREN'S FUND.

Detailed Statement of the Treasurer's Receipts and Expenditures.

Aggregate Amount of Contributions to Date, $18,900 25.

Total Amount Expended for Excursions and Relief, $10,289 17.

Cash Balance on Hand, $8,611 08—Interesting Statistics of the Fund—The Picnics of the Present Week.

We present today our customary weekly statement of the Children's Fund, as made by the Treasurer, the items being published precisely as they appear on his books. The Fund has now been in existence fifty-one days, during which time fourteen excursions have been given to the poor children of the City, and relief extended to all of those who were unable through sickness to attend, and who could be reached. The aggregate amount received in contributions to the Fund up to Saturday night was $18,900 25, of which $10,289 17 have been expended, leaving a balance of $8,611 08 in hand. Of this balance over $2,000 will probably be expended during the present week for excursions or on relief.

These accounts give, of course, only the cost of the work performed, without any of the details so necessary for a full appreciation of the movement, its scope and character. On the fourteen excursions already given, 11,830 children have been carried out of the City for a day's holiday. Besides these there were 1,647 adults present, making a grand total of 13,477 persons. The amount expended for these excursions was $7,671 64, the pro rata expense for each individual being fifty-six cents. This low figure waspnly reached through the liberality of railroad and steam-boat owners, and the dealers from whom we have obtained our supplies.

In the relief movement, the details of the work are quite interesting. During the six weeks that the four relief districts have been in full operation, there were 24,402 visits made to families, and of these there were 2,339 families who needed relief and were supplied. The number of children furnished with provisions was 5,343, besides 374 adults. The number of medical visits made by the physicians acting under the Fund was 1,247, besides 161 made gratuitously. The number of families at present receiving relief, on stated weekly allowance, is 313, in which 1,240 children enjoy the benefits of the Fund. The number of children remaining under medical attendance is 94, and of the whole number so far attended 613 have been restored to health. All of this work has been performed at an expense of $2,617 13.

Today the fifteenth TIMES excursion will take place, when a very large number of children from the west side of town will participate. The St. John's Guild of the Eighth Ward, having been so successful in procuring poor children for our excursions, have extended their labors in that direction into the Third and Ninth Wards. They expect today to report at the foot of Spring-street with over 1,400 children, who will be drawn from the Wards already mentioned, together with many others in the Fifth and Eighth Wards, who were disappointed on former occasions. In order to aid the Guild in getting these children together, we shall give the excursion in their name. The children will report under the guidance of the visitors of the East-side District, on the pier at the foot of Spring-street, by 8 o'clock, and will march on board to the music of the Governor's Island Band. Long before that hour our steward, Mr. James Proctor, and his assistants will be on board preparing the food for the day. We shall today profit by the kind offer of Mr. H. B. Crossett, the owner of the Wyoming, he having tendered the steamer for the picnic at half price, thus making the amount contributed by him in barges and steamers to the Fund over $700. As soon as the party are all on board, the steamer will proceed up the Hudson River to Iona Island, Messrs. Hasbrouck & Bushnell, the proprietors, having tendered us the free use of their island for the day. The usual bill of fare in the shape of sandwiches, milk, cake, lemonade and ice-cream will be furnished to the children. Superintendent Kelso has detailed eight officers to accompany the excursion. Extra and large life-boats have also been engaged to guard against accidents.

On Friday next the sixteenth excursion of the series will occur, when another large body of children, drawn from all sections of the City, will cross the North River to Hoboken, where they will embark on a special tram on the Delaware and Lackawanna Railroad. The party will proceed to Boonton, New-Jersey, accompanied by the full brass-band from Governor's Island. This excursion has been arranged at the request of the citizens of Boonton, and the farmers in that neighborhood, they having generously offered to entertain the boys and girls. The Committee of Arrangements appointed by the citizens of Boonton will be headed by the Mayor and the Town Council, and we understand that extensive arrangements are being made for feeding and entertaining the children. Thousands of sandwiches and home-made cakes will be provided. The farmers will furnish ample supplies of fruit and milk, and the citizens of the town are erecting triumphal arches in honor of the occasion. All that our Manager will furnish on that day will consist of lemonade and ice-cream. Judging from the indications, this excursion will be a most interesting one.

Saturday's Excursion.

The fourteenth excursion of children taken from the purlieus of this City, under the management of the NEW-YORK TIMES, occurred on Saturday last, and was among the most successful of the series. There were on board the barge Sarah Smith 1,245 children, and seventy-two mothers with infants. These, with the forty-one teachers, the TIMES staff, assistants, band, and crew, made a party of over 1,400 persons, who were taken up the Hudson River to Excelsior Park.

The majority of the children were collected from the shanty region on the west side of the City above Thirty-fifth-street, a portion being embarked at Forty-sixth-street and the remainder at Seventy-ninth-street. To these were added several boys from the Fourteenth Ward, collected through the managers of the St. Barnabas free reading-rooms in Mulberry-street, and who were taken on board at Christopher-street. A large portion of the children were German, and amused themselves all the way up the river with dancing to the music furnished by the Governor's Island Band.

On arriving at Excelsior Park the children set up a shout of joy, and after being served with their dinner (a breakfast of sandwiches and milk having been given out as soon as the barge left Seventy-ninth-street) the crowd of happy juveniles went on shore, the boys as usual rushing into the water to bathe, while the girls entered the grove in search of vines, &c., with which to decorate their hats. Punch and Judy, dancing to the music of the band, skipping and scupping, furnished amusement enough for the three hours the little ones remained on shore, and at 3 o'clock the whistles summoned them to return to the barge, where the whole party were regaled with cake and lemonade.

The return trip was delightful, during which each person was supplied with ice-cream. By 6 o'clock in the evening the far up-town children were landed at Seventy-ninth-street, all pleased with their day's trip; and before 6½ the balance of the shanty children disembarked at Forty-eighth-street, those from the Fourteenth Ward being brought down to Christopher-street.

Comments of the Press.

From the Newburg Index.

One of the noblest achievements effected by a newspaper has been accomplished by the NEW-YORK TIMES in organising and conducting picnics for the poor children of New-York City. Such an undertaking should be encouraged by every one on all sides. Large contributions and donations have been daily received until the sum has swelled to upward of $18,000. Quite a number of excursions have already been given, to fine groves up the river, enabling thousands of children—and not only children, but delicate mothers—to enjoy, many of them, probably, for the first time, the pleasure of a day's rest or a romp in the green fields and shady woods. Such a noble and charitable undertaking needs only to be brought prominently before the public to enlist the sympathies of all, and all honor to the TIMES for commencing and carrying on such a good work.

From the Newark Advertiser.

The TIMES poor children picnic enterprise has proved a noble success. Nearly $20,000 have thus far been contributed to the cause, and fourteen excursions have taken place, under the management of the TIMES people, giving a happy day to each of 14,000 children. Two more excursions will wind up the fun for this year, the last excursion being appointed for the 30th inst., when the children will be taken to Hoboken, and thence, by the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western Railroad, to Boonton, to enjoy the hospitality of the good people of that town.

ON THE WATER.

The Last Boat from Coney Island on Sunday Evening.

In spite of the accidents to the bathers at different points along the coast last week, there were numerous bathers at Coney Island yesterday. The arrivals, both by rail and boat, were very numerous all day long, and when the sun was near the horizon and the clouds began to be tinged with crimson, the sky to be barred and flecked with red cirri, there were still crowds of lingerers upon the beach and in the water. The hotels were all filled with consumers of roasted clams, and the speculative organ-grinder from New-York was still tooting a melancholy air. The steamers at the point whistled shrilly in vain, for the people would not hurry themselves, knowing from long experience that the steamboat men would not stir while there was a quarter visible in the distance. At 6½ o'clock the two boats started, fairly laden to the gunwale with human freight. The Sedgwick being a tolerably large boat did not run much risk, though the sea was quite fresh and there was a considerable swell about the Narrows. But the Olyphant was by no means a bed of roses for a nervous man. She rolled in a way that was simply alarming, and her entire crew were busy shifting ballast from side to side to meet the exigencies of the moment. There were some roughs, some swindlers, and some pickpockets mixed up as usual with the decent folks who came with their children to enjoy the sea air and the tumbling in the surf. But things were much too uncomfortable for people to feel speculative, and therefore the representatives of the dangerous classes subsided. Once inside the Narrows the swell was greatly diminished, and the gangs of men fore and aft, who were handling the ballast were released from this very arduous task. Then the swindlers, feeling somewhat safer, came to the front and tried to get up a little game. A youth of about four, with a most repulsive physiognomy, in which bashfulness and brazen impudence were curiously mixed, wearing very seedy country clothes, and having in his whole manner, shape, and style the aspect of a rowdy from some New-Jersey village, attempted to make a little money. He produced six little boxes like those in which Gilford packs his pens, and in one of these he deposited four $1 bills. "Now," said he, in a hoarse sort of whisper, to a knot of young fellows who were exactly like him, only shabbier, "this is only a friendly little game by which I'll give any gemman a chance to win his beer money. Any man can choose one of these boxes for twenty-five cents. Any gemman as would like to venture can freely examine and try if these bills are counterfeit. Twenty-five cents is all I ask for a chance to win $4." Gabbling on in this style, he shook up the boxes in his greasy felt hat and presented them to a confederate for inspection. Just at this critical moment one of the confederates who surrounded him became aware that there was a policeman on board who was eyeing the little game with much composure, waiting for the production of money on either side as an overt act which would justify him in arresting the crowd. "Cheese the game, there's a cop," one of them whispered to the leader, and he immediately stowing his box into the pocket of his ragged pantaloons mingled with the passengers at the other end of the boat in an unconcerned manner. From the circumstance that all the parties who were concerned in this new game were evidently country boys, it is probable that the monte men who used to skin the unwary have gone into politics and accepted office under Wood and Blumenberg, the great thimble-riggers.

Difficult Surgical Operation.

A German, named Martin Leghus, of No. 52 Main-street, Brooklyn, has been suffering from a painful abdominal disease for the past five years. The disease had reached that stage known as "strangulation," when it was reduced by the process of taxis. Yesterday morning strangulation again set in, and Leghus applied to Dr. Vandewater, of the Centre-street Hospital, for relief. Leghus was examined, and a large inflamed tumor was discovered in the scrotum. He was then etherized, and for an hour and a half Drs. Vandewater, Bruce and Hardy endeavored to reduce the hernia, but without effect. Prof. J. W. Gourley, of Bellevue, was called in consultation, and an operation was deemed necessary to save Leghus. Accordingly, an incision of six inches in length, beginning in the groin and extending to the scrotum, was made, laying bare eighteen inches of strangulated intestines. To replace this in its natural position was found impossible, as a large sanguineous humor had formed around the intestine. This was punctured, and the blood allowed to flow. The effort to replace the intestine again proving abortive, a delicate incision was made, and the orifice was sufficiently enlarged to allow of proper replacement. The wound was then sewed up, a compress and bandages applied, and the operation successfully closed.

Yorkville Police Court.

On Saturday Mr. Wm. Balmer, of Morrisania, while riding on a Fourth-avenue Railroad-car through the tunnel, was robbed of his pocket-book, containing $237, by a stranger who stood beside him. He discovered the theft, and when the car emerged from the tunnel tried to seize the suspected thief, who jumped from the car and ran off. Mr. Balmer followed him, but was stopped by a suspected confederate of the thief, named Philip Wilson. Balmer chased the thief through Thirty-third-street, when, gaining on him, the latter threw away the plunder and escaped. Wilson had, however, been secured in the meantime, and on being taken before Justice Coulter, was held to answer, and locked up in default of bail.

The Swamp Gang Again—Shooting Affray in Frankfort-Street.

Another shooting affray among members of the notorious Frankfort-street or Swamp gang of ruffians took place last night. The gang is divided into two rival factions—those who belong in Frankfort-street, from Vandewater to Pearl, and those who belong in Frankfort, from Vandewater to Chatham. One faction is led by two brothers named McCabe, while two brothers named McBride hold sway over the other. About two weeks ago one of the McBrides, named James, shot James McCabe. He was arrested at the time. It was, however, thought by the Police that a man named Lavelle did the actual shooting. McCabe recovered, and McBride was convicted in the Court of General Sessions and sentenced to State Prison by Judge Bedford. Last night while the other McBride, who is named Charles, was walking up Frankfort-street alone, he was met at the corner of Rose-street by John McCabe, alias "Bucky" McCabe, a brother of the James McCabe before alluded to. McCabe, who lives in No. 3 Vandewater-street, was accompanied by a young thief named Simon Thomas, and one James O'Connell, alias "Duck Carr." McCabe, on seeing McBride, at once drew a revolver and fired twice at McBride, failing to hit him. The men then clinched, when McCabe struck McBride several times over the head with brass knuckles, cutting him severely. While McBride lay on the sidewalk he was kicked and beaten by Thomas and O'Connell. Officer Cortlander, who, from the bad management of the precinct, could not have been near the scene, then arrived and conveyed McBride to the Park Hospital, where his wounds were dressed by Dr. Vandewater. McCabe, Thomas, or O'Connell had not, up to a late hour, been arrested.

SPAIN.

An American Arrested on a Charge of Complicity with the King's Assassins—Fresh Claims for Damages in Perspective.

Madrid (Aug. 10) Correspondence of the London Echo.

An episode in the proceedings relative to the assassination cause has just occurred. It appears that on the very night of the crime a foreigner had held forth, in the Café de Platerias, to the groups around him to the effect that King Amadeus was of no use at all to the nation, that all nations were at the present day sufficiently civilized to do without Kings, and more to the same purpose—using very expressive language to convey his meaning.

From the moment that the wisest of Judges discovered that a foreigner had spoken as above, he attached great significance to the fact, and evidently deemed that he had discovered the much sought-for clue to the great mystery, and that foreigner, or some foreigner, must be arrested. He, therefore, forthwith telegraphed to all the Governors of Provinces in Spain, and in the adjacent islands, ordering them to arrest any foreigner whose conduct seemed at all suspicious to them. Unfortunately, all foreigners are suspicious characters in this European China. Let them only present themselves in any of the inland provincial towns at a distance from Madrid, and they will be followed by the idle crowds to the very women and children as though they were some strange wild animal, and it is well for them if they escape being stoned. In this case, a veritable lamb sacrificed to the judicial zeal of a determined Magistrate. Just eight days ago, La Correspondencia conveyed to the Spanish world the welcome intelligence that a North American, suspected of complicity in the attack upon the King, had been arrested in San Sebastian. Such a windfall! The whole matter was made clear in a moment. The negreros, of Cuba, pounced with delight upon the tidings, and immediately demonstrated how it was a purely filibustero conspiracy to murder the King, and that filibusteros, and only they, could have been the guilty parties.

The facts are that a worthy and most respectable American citizen, named Nathan Peake, agent of the well-known house of Colton & Co., of New-York, had come to Spain for the purpose of selling maps on commission for that firm, and after having finished his business in Madrid had gone to Santander on business also, and as well for the purpose of embarking there for England, whither he was going also on commission business relating to some Spanish iron mines. He proceeded from Santander to San Sebastian on the steamer that was to convey him to England, and was arrested at the latter place at 10 o'clock of the morning on which he arrived. Upon reaching the prison he was searched, and all his papers, as well as a small pocket pen-knife, were taken from him. He was detained there all day until 1 o'clock the next morning, when he was aroused from his slumbers and set at liberty. He went to his hotel to continue his night's rest, but was conscious that a spy had been set to watch his movements.

The next morning, at an early hour, he was again arrested, and without one word, thus far, from any one, as to why he was subjected to such treatment, he was ordered to take the train, under the custody of two Civil Guards, and proceed to Madrid, paying his own fare, or, in the alternative, to come on foot all the distance. He demanded permission to communicate with his Minister, or with his Consul, as well, to telegraph to friends in Madrid, and solicit legal advice, but he was refused one and all of his requests.

Upon arriving at Madrid he was immediately conducted to the presence of the Judge, who, without then examining him, or affording him any explanation as to why he was thus outraged, remanded him to prison. The Magistrate, when it was convenient for him to do so, then questioned him as to his name, profession, country, where he lived, and what he was doing on the night of the 18th of July, and who knew him in Madrid. The persons mentioned by the victim were summoned, and their declarations coincided perfectly with his account of himself, and he having been duly released was taken outwaters at the Café de Platerias, none of whom recognized him as the foreign orator of the night in question, his prison-doors were at last opened, and he set free by an alguacil without one word of an apology or condolence from the mistaken Magistrate for all the wrongs, humiliations, and outrages he had suffered.

One of the gentlemen to whom Mr. Peake referred for testimony in his favor, a Spaniard, but understanding English perfectly, went, in obedience to the summons sent him, to the office of the Judge. Upon arriving, he was ushered into a large apartment, where sat his Honor in state, surrounded by his staff of clerks, writers, &c. After making his obeisance to the melancholy and having been requested to take a seat, the gentleman in question, after a gloomy interval of silence, was astounded and perplexed at the Judge's asking him in the gravest and most measured tones if he knew a person by the name of Nah-tahn-pay-ah-kay. He begged pardon, and requested a repetition of the singular name. It was repeated more clearly and in a still graver tone by the Judge; but the witness, after a few moments of profound reflection, wondering the while whether he was suffering from an acoustic delusion, declared that he had never even heard such a name pronounced in the whole course of his life. A few indications on the part of the Judge, however, assisted the friend in discovering that the above remarkable combination was but the pure and unadulterated Castillan pronunciation of Nathan Peake.

A Spaniard, upon being set at liberty after an ordeal of this kind, would, in ninety-nine cases out of a hundred, have gone quietly home, glad to have escaped so cheaply from the fangs of the justice of his country; but our North American is not of this way of thinking. As soon as he was free he proceeded immediately to the Judge's office, and after requesting his passport, which had not been returned to him, he informed the Judge that he was going to proceed against the Government for damages for unjustifiable imprisonment and detention for the space of ten days, for the losses he had incurred, besides the indemnification due for the outrage done him. The Judge, for a certainty, had never in all his life heard of any such reclamation, and appeared to think the American deranged. In evident perplexity, he answered that all that was not any part of his business, that he had discharged him, being all he was bound to do, and bade Mr. Peake good day with uncommon haste.

The American, at this stage, in a moment considered himself free to leave Madrid and continue on his journey; but on reflection he remembered that the order for arresting the suspicious foreigner was still extant, and he, being enormously tall and a personification of a certain American type, would be sure to attract the attention of the Government officials still on the alert to catch the expiatory foreigner, and would, as likely as not, be arrested at the first railroad station and sent back to Madrid again as the foreign conspirator, Nah-tann-pay-ah-kay. He has, therefore, concluded to wait until some other foreigner is arrested, and then make the most of his time to escape forever from Spain and its Judges. He is, in the meanwhile drawing up his charges, but is again unfortunate in that both the American Minister and Secretary are absent from Madrid at the present moment.

A CORSICAN TRAGEDY.

A Young Wife Murders Her Husband—Result of Jealousy—The Trial and Acquittal.

The Paris Figaro reports a remarkable trial held at the Court of Assize at Bastia, in Corsica, on the 8th inst. The accused was a young and exceedingly pretty woman, allied to several of the best families in the country, well educated, of irreproachable morals, known to possess a dreamy and tender nature, and yet this scarcely more than a girl killed her husband, in an access of jealousy, with a ferocity perfectly savage. It appears that she was married at eighteen years of age to Carlo Bonavente, and before three years had elapsed she discovered that her husband was carrying on a liaison with Maria Fanti, a young governess to her infant child. Having discovered the guilty pair at midnight, Lucia Bonavente shot her husband dead. In the course of the trial the accused lady made the following statement:

"A very few days after the arrival of Maria at Castelmoro I was left in no doubt as to the relations between my husband and that girl; I was not speaking of her, but of him; it is him that I reproached—at first tenderly and tearfully; asking him what I had done that he should cease to love me, and he put me off with a smile and a jest. If was then that I thought of poisoning myself, but I remembered my little daughter, and I had not the courage to abandon her. Indeed, I decided to suffer without speaking; I still hoped that my husband would leave Maria and return to me. I should have pardoned him for all, but he did nothing. I discovered that the scandal was well known, not merely to my own servants, but to all the country round. Some pitied me, others mocked at me. I could confide my troubles to no friend; even my mother was in very unhappy in her domestic life, and I did not wish to reawaken bitter reminiscences. That state of things lasted for a month; then I made one more endeavor. I pleaded with my husband again to send Maria away. Not only did he refuse his refusal, but he declared that if the girl went he would follow her. I humiliated myself upon my knees to him. Oh, I am certain he could not have done so, but at the moment I believed in it. All was useless. I went on to threaten; he replied by bursts of laughter; and from that day he made no concealment of his love for Maria, who stayed at Castelmoro doing nothing, for I had taken from her, of course, the charge of my child. On the 6th of March, at 7 o'clock in the evening, I saw them together in the park, and, losing my senses, I went into my husband's study, whence I took a revolver, decided upon avenging myself, not on her only, but also upon him. I went downstairs, but they had come in by a back way, and I found my husband at table, playing with his child. I tore her from his arms, indignant that his polluted lips should sully the forehead of that infant. He began joking with me, and I do not know how I resisted the impulse to kill him on the spot, for I had the pistol in my bosom. God willed it otherwise, however. The next day, mad, desperate, feeling that I was being carried down some deadly descent, I took Maria on one side. I implored her to go away; I offered her all the money and every jewel I possessed. I wept. Nothing availed. The girl met me with the hypocrisy that she did not understand what I was referring to; that she would only leave the house on the orders of her master; and that she was about to become the mother of his child, as she had long been his mistress. Finally I left, to seek one last explanation from my husband. He had gone to Ajuccio, and did not return until dinner-time next day. During the meal we did not exchange ten words, and I retired to my apartments, with the intention of going back to the dining-room so soon as my child was asleep. What did he do, upon the first syllables I addressed to him? He answered me insolently, and quitted my presence, refusing to listen further. I returned to my chamber, and thence, through the window, I saw Maria conversing with him in the park. I had not the slightest doubt that this dialogue signified a rendezvous for the night. I put out my light and waited. I waited, hoping that I was self-deceived, calling upon heaven to help me, I declare. I was determined no longer to bear this humiliation or this grief. But about half an hour after midnight I recognized the step of my husband on the landing and on the staircase leading to the second floor, where Maria's bedroom was situated. What time afterward elapsed I cannot tell, because my head was on fire. It may have been ten minutes, or it may have been an hour. All I remember is that, hearing no sound, I went upstairs. With one hand I held the child, who had lighted, with the other a key which opened Maria's door, not a key which I had made myself, but a duplicate one, such as is used in most houses, to open the doors of the servants' rooms. The revolver was all the while in my breast. I opened the door noiselessly, and when I saw my husband asleep in the arms of this girl I thought I had the right to vindicate my own honor as an outraged wife and mother. I fired once, perhaps twice, nothing else. I know no more. I loved him so!"

Evidence was taken, and, after an eloquent speech for the prisoner, the President summed up; the jury retired; ten minutes later, they returned, with an unanimous verdict of acquittal. Lucia Modelli (Bonavente) was instantly ordered to be set free; an immense crowd shouted its joy over the decision; the exonerated murderess dropped swooning into her mother's arms, and the social critics cry Tue le!
